Wilson to Lift Prohibition When the Treaty Is Ratified

'DRY' BILL DEBATE IN SENATE

Hitchcock Objects to Giving Veto Precedence Over Treaty

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—President Wilson will lift the wartime prohibition ban as soon as the peace treaty is ratified, it was stated at the White House today.

The President will not lift the ban until the treaty is ratified, irrespective of whether Congress overrides his veto of the prohibition enforcement act, it was stated.

A request for unanimous consent to consider the President's veto of the prohibition enforcement act made by Senator Sterling of South Dakota was blocked temporarily in the Senate this afternoon. Senator Hitchcock, administration leader, opposed immediate consideration of the vetoed measure

Post-War English Girls Are Straight and Muscular

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 28.—The war has evolved a new type of beauty among English women, due to their hard work and outdoor life, according to the Chronicle, which has been gathering data from well-known modistes.

The post-war girl is described as broad-shouldered, straight, slender and muscular. The men have grown smaller, while the women are getting bigger in stature, according to tailors.

AUTOS MAY BE PARKED ANYWHERE IN LYNN

Lynn, Oct. 28.—Automobiles can be parked anywhere in Lynn, and the police have no right to interfere, Judge Henry T. Lummus ruled today. Last week the police started a campaign against autoists who parked their cars in busy thoroughfares and put a tag on the steering wheels of cars, ordering owners to report to police headquarters. More than 300 autos were so tagged. Today Willard L. Ilsley appeared in a test case before Judge Lummus, and the latter declared that such rules made by the police were not legal because they had never been published in full. Today the police captains ordered their men to tag no more autos.

HUGE WAVE TAKES 10 LIVES

Steamship Crashes Into Pier at Muskegon, Mich., and Goes Down

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 28.—Ten persons were drowned in the harbor here early today when the Crosby Line steamship City of Muskegon was caught by a huge wave as she was trying to make the harbor, hurled into a pier and sent to the bottom. The force of the impact crushed in the side of the ship.

Of those drowned seven were members of the crew and three were passengers. The ship carried a crew of sixteen and twenty-five passengers.

The dead are:

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE FROM THE
TREMONT TRUST COMPANY

We are pleased to announce that on November 1, we will pay, or place to the credit of our Savings Depositors, interest at the rate of per annum, for the month of October. We did not declare this interest until we were satisfied that our income would warrant the regular payment of this rate. We shall continue to pay interest to our savings depositors monthly and permit withdrawals at any time practically without loss of interest.

5%

We pay this increased interest, not because we are philanthropists, charity givers or publicity seekers, but because the money of our savings depositors earned this rate—and more besides. The law does not allow us to pay more than five per cent.

The question of old-fashioned or new-fashioned banking does not concern you as much as the question of the best fashion of banking—which is to give depositors all they are rightly entitled to.

The only reward we ask for our efforts in behalf of the people is to help us to become the largest banking institution in New England. This you can do by opening an account with us either in person or by mail in our Savings or Commercial (Checking) Department, and by taking full advantage of our Foreign Exchange, Safe Deposit and Trust Departments. Get your friends to start an account which may be opened in any amount.

Women Saw Signals Flashed at Night

By BERT FORD.

After his talk with Mrs. Horace Morrison, at noon on the day he was murdered, in which he asked her to go to Boston and tell the Department of Justice officials to send up one of their best men at once as he wished to give them information which he considered too dangerous to impart to a woman, Dr. William N. Dean of East Jaffrey, N. H., attended to his customary afternoon chores, and early that evening went to the village to do his weekly shopping.

PERSHING WILL MAKE TOUR OF NATION

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—General Pershing is planning a tour of the United States, he announced this afternoon.

After appearing before Congressional committees, General Pershing said he would visit army camps and cantonments, and factories which were engaged in the manufacture of war material. He will visit his home in Laclede, Mo., during the tour.

General Pershing declared that "gross injustice" had been done him by reports that he was to be married. He stated that he had entertained the widow of one of his "best aides," and that reports that followed were very embarrassing.

"I will tell the world when I am going to be married," General Pershing said.

"I will do the best I can for the army," he said when questioned as to recommendations he would make when he appeared before Congressional committees.

General Pershing is now busy completing his final report on the work of the A. E. F.

SIX MEN ARRESTED IN PLYMOUTH BURGLARIES

Taunton, Oct. 28.—A half dozen men are under arrest and as many more are expected to be in custody before nightfall through the co-operation of the Taunton and Brockton police and railway detectives in rounding up those connected with a series of breaks in Plymouth County during the last two weeks. Thousands of dollars' worth of goods have been stolen. The prisoners taken today were John Meninski, Mike Kosta, William Petronis of Middleboro, Stephen Rudriski, Joseph Maronee of Stoughton and John Cochinski of Brockton, all charged with receiving stolen property, and it is claimed that quantities of goods were recovered from their homes. Among breaks recently was that of a freight car at the Montello station, from which 300 pairs of shoes were taken; and that of the Pashion Clothes Shop, Bridgewater, where the store was cleaned out.

OVATION TO ALBERT IN SENATE

Belgian King Visits the White House and Then Addresses National Legislators

Washington, Oct. 28.—King Albert of Belgium paid his respects to Congress this afternoon, amid a great uproar of applause.

In the galleries were high government officials and ladies. Enthroned with Mrs. Marshall, wife of the Vice-President, King Albert was escorted into the Senate chamber by a committee composed of Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Hitchcock of Nebraska, Harding of Ohio, Swanson of Virginia, Warren of Wyoming and Underwood of Alabama.

Most of the Senators were in their seats. Secretary Daniels seated himself between Senators King of Utah and Gore of Oklahoma. Members of the House and others entitled to admission to the Senate floor grouped themselves against the wall in the rear of the chamber, where standing room was at a premium.

The representatives were forced to stand close to elbow with committee clerks and Senate attaches.

The galleries, to which admission was by card only, were jammed an hour for the arrival of the King and his party approached. Informally presenting King Albert to the Senate, Senator Cummins, president pro tempore, said:

"We are living now in a world well-nigh wrecked by wicked ambition of one great power, and many hard and weary years must go by before either Europe or America will enjoy a quiet of content.

"If nothing had been destroyed save physical creations of commercial strife—

BOSTON LAWYER FREED IN ALLEGED THEFT CASE

Lynn, Oct. 28.—Francis L. Harrington, claiming to be a Boston attorney, was discharged today on the double counts of committing a statutory offence with a woman called "Mysterious Mary Smith," and larceny. "Mysterious Mary" was arrested two weeks ago charged with shoplifting in various stores of the city. When Harrington appeared to offer bail for the woman he, too, was taken by the police, claiming that he lived with the woman at an apartment on Rogers park. They further alleged that $1000 worth of the stolen clothing was found in this apartment. Harrington was discharged for lack of evidence.

NEW YORK GROWS BETTER; FEWER WOMEN IN COURT

New York, Oct. 28.—Social life of New York is becoming moral. True, it is not any paragon of virtue yet, but progress is being made, according to statistics made public today by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, based upon the number of cases in the Women's Night Court. In September, for instance, only 138 women were hailed into court on immorality charges, as compared with 296 for last May. Figures on the same month a year and two years ago were 212 and 144, respectively.

VISCOUNTESS ASTOR DENIES 'PUSSY-FOOTING'

London, Oct. 28.—Viscountess Astor, who has announced her candidacy for a seat in the House of Commons from Plymouth, issued a first campaign statement today, denying that she was a prohibition candidate. It follows: "I have neither been asked to stand as a 'pussy-foot' candidate nor have I any intention of doing so. It seems to me I detect the claws of some other sort of enemies out in this misleading suggestion. It was signed "Nancy Astor."

President Is Able to Eat Sitting Up in His Bed

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—President Wilson's condition still continues to improve, an official bulletin at the White House this afternoon stated. The statement was as follows: "There is no special change in the President's condition. His progress continues. He takes his luncheon and dinner in a semi-sitting position, which adds greatly to the enjoyment of his food and causes no fatigue." The statement was signed by Dr. Grayson, Ruffin and Stitt.

WASHINGTON IS OPTIMISTIC IN COAL CRISIS

Government Circles Do Not Fear Strike; Labor Is Not So Sanguine

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Despite the repeated assertions of Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America that the great soft coal strike must and will go into effect at midnight Friday unless the operators make concessions—which they insist they will not make—government circles today remain optimistic.

In labor circles, however, this feeling is not shared in any marked degree. The feeling there is that the strike will be called on schedule time and they predict that it may spread to other fields.

One thing is certain. The situation is considered very critical and only by the most skilful handling of it by all concerned—government, operators and miners—can one of the greatest disasters that ever visited the country be averted.

All eyes here are on Indianapolis, where Lewis arrives from Springfield to assume active and personal command of final preparations for the

NINE HURT IN UTICA, N. Y., STRIKE BATTLE

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Six policemen and three strikers were injured, two seriously, in a battle between the police and a crowd of 2,000 textile strikers here today. The police were unable to cope with the situation and Mayor Smith appealed to the Governor to send State troops to quell the rioting.

SAYS SINN FEIN MIGHT DISARM BRITISH FORCES

London, Oct. 28.—Another broadside against the Sinn Fein was printed by the Daily Express today in its Irish propaganda campaign. Quoting a dispatch from its Dublin correspondent, the newspaper said: "With the information the Sinn Fein volunteers possess and the number of disciplined men at the disposal of the Sinn Fein organization, together with their exceptional ability to concentrate secretly, it might be possible for the Sinn Feiners to disarm the whole British garrison in Ireland within a single night."

FEDERAL THREAT IS SCOUTED

Can't Make Miners Dig Coal or Men Move Trains, Lee Declares

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 28.—"The government cannot force miners to dig coal or men to move trains, not with all the soldiers in the world," declared W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, today.

"If it can, then men are in a condition of involuntary servitude. It would mean that no man could quit his job if his employer were powerful enough to secure government intervention," Lee continued.

The coal miners have been pledged the support of the Big Four Railroad Brotherhoods should their threat to strike be carried out and the government attempts to warn the miners it became known today, although Lee refuses to make a definite statement as to his action.

When asked what effect the President's letter would have on the strike plans of the railroad men, who are united in a movement for a general railroad strike should the administration fail to answer satisfactorily the demands of all the railroad organizations, Lee said:

"The National Administration gives its answer to the railway employees strike. Tomorrow at 10 a. m. the executive board, the miners' scale committee and delegates from about 25 presidents of district miners' unions will meet and formulate a "suitable" reply, as they term it, to President Wilson's proclamation.

Tomorrow, Washington seems to feel—and if not tomorrow this week—must prove a turning point in the great wave of unrest now sweeping the United States.

If the optimism found in certain circles justifies itself and the President's warning is heeded by the soft coal miners, not only will one of the greatest disasters the nation has faced since the Civil War be averted but it is considered the way will be paved for further harmonious negotiations between capital and labor. With the government acting as a sort of supreme arbiter.

"CLASH OF CLASS" NEAR.

On the other hand, if the strike is called regardless, the die will be cast, the lines broadened and what some people are already calling the "clash of class" will be on.

At Gary, Pittsburgh, New York, Knoxville and many other parts of the country, big strikes already are underway. The rules for others have been set and still more strikes are in the offing.

The government apparently believes the time has come to take a stand both against the stubbornness of the employer and the willfulness of the employee.

Side though the Chief Executive is and too weak to do much more than give his name to an occasional important measure, it is generally understood that a new policy has been determined upon at the White House with the unanimous approval of the Cabinet and backed by both houses which, in effect, is that henceforth both capital and labor must be reasonable in their dealings with each other wherever the public interests at large are involved.

PROMPT ACTION PLANNED.

Government officials refuse to state what steps will be taken in the event the President's warning is not heeded, but it is understood they will be effective and immediate.

The federal railroad administration took steps today to increase the number of cars available for moving coal by issuing orders effective immediately that where the cars are not unloaded by the consignee within 24 hours after delivery, the coal will be dumped on the ground and the cars put in service again.

No replacements of miners or operation of mines by soldiers was intended in this order, officials declared today, to provide additional compensation for troops on strike duty. Senator Thomas of Colorado, author of the bill, stated in the Senate today.

The purpose of the measure was to utilize soldiers to prevent disruption of transportation and other facilities for movement of coal from the mines, and not to provide for them to work in the mines, Senator Thomas said, the soldiers to receive the same compensation as others employed on railroads or other means of interstate commerce.

"It Is Now the Operators' Move," Declares Lewis, Head of Mine Workers

By International News Service.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—Insisting that there would be no change in the attitude of the union coal miners toward the proposed strike unless the operators indicated a willingness to deal fairly with them, John L. Lewis acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, left here this morning for Indianapolis. His parting shot as he stepped aboard the train was:

"We have played our play; it is now the operators' move."

Mr. Lewis, on his arrival in Indianapolis, will confer with other mine union officials on the strike.

tomorrow, and I do not wish to discuss its possible effect until I hear what it is. I would not be fair to the director of the railroads. One thing I will say, however, the government cannot force miners to dig coal or men to move trains, not with all the soldiers in the world. If it can, then men are in a condition of involuntary servitude.

"It would mean that no man could quit his job if his employer were powerful enough to secure government intervention. We abolished black slavery in this country some years ago. Civilized countries abolished white slavery centuries ago. We should bear in mind that we are living in the year 1919 and in what we are proud to call the greatest democracy on earth. The workers did well their part in the late war in keeping democracy safe, and they now merit words of praise instead of threats.

"THREAT IS FOOLISH."

"The threat to have soldiers work the mines is foolish, just as foolish as if the government threatened to have soldiers operate the trains. It requires skilled men to do either, and there are laws which prohibit the unskilled from working in mines or on the railroads.

At a meeting held before John L. Lewis acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, left Washington, in which he and other officers of the miners and representatives of the four brotherhoods took part, the railroad men gave the miners assurance of "all possible assistance."

tires, the labor of restoration would involve the sustained energy of decades of limitless patience and self-denial; but our loss is infinitely greater than is felt in the destruction of these material things. The war has unsettled our accepted faith, in the forms of organized society, in the relations which its members should bear to each other and in the instrumentalities through which justice, happiness and growth can best be attained.

"When I see sons and daughters of our race, now or hereafter forget the sacrifice, or fail to remember it with reverence and gratitude, the world which Belgium saved, will be unworthy of deliverance."

THE KING'S ADDRESS.

King Albert addressing the Senate said:

"Gentlemen:

"It is, indeed, a great honor for me to address this illustrious assembly.

"I salute not only the eminent men who have received me here today, but I salute the memory of your great predecessors, who, during one hundred and thirty years, have sat in this place and given to the whole world the example of the highest civic virtues. From the bottom of my heart, I thank your President for the beautiful and far-too laudatory words that he has addressed to me. This welcome of the Senate seals that reception, so warm and so spontaneous, that I have received everywhere during my journey across this magnificent country.

"I am deeply moved by the expressions of sympathy that the name of Belgium evokes from the noble American people.

"Nothing could better characterize the reign of universal democracy than the friendship which unites the great republic with its one hundred and ten million citizens and the real of which I am the constitutional head, with its seven million and a half inhabitants. If there is no equality of power and riches between them, there is equality in the love of liberty and in aspiration toward social progress.

SAME IDEAL INSPIRES.

"On both sides of the Atlantic the same ideal inspires us. The exchange of ideas, the commercial relations, the visits to Belgium of eminent Americans of which many sit in this assembly, are so many means of tightening the bonds between the two nations.

"I have with all my heart that those relations, which go back as far as memory, which have been fortified during the war as well as by the admirable assistance which you rendered Belgium by feeding her people and by the fraternity in arms, will increase to develop for the great good of our two countries.

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth arrived at the White House at 10:15 o'clock today to pay their respects to Mrs. Wilson.

The royal couple were accompanied by Secretary of State Robert Lansing and were unattended except for their immediate personal attendants, including the military aide of the King and the lady-in-waiting of the Queen.

King Albert is the first reigning monarch ever to enter the White House. The Duke of Brabant, Crown Prince, accompanied the King and Queen. They remained with Mrs. Wilson for about half an hour.

They did not see the President. Despite his illness, however, the President will receive the royal couple later, it was learned today.

From authoritative sources it was learned that the meeting is planned for Thursday. While Mrs. Wilson is pouring tea at an informal gathering in honor of the royal guests at the White House, the royal couple will slip quietly away and, guided by a White House attache, unostentatiously enter the sick room, where the President will grasp their hands and personally welcome them to his own and the hospitality of the nation.

As secretary Tumulty was leaving President Wilson's room today he remarked that he was going to meet the King and Queen of Belgium.

"You mean the King and Queen of the Belgians," said the President.

"I accept the amendment," replied Mr. Tumulty.

"It is not an amendment—merely an interpretation," countered the President.

The hostess houses will also come under this department.

Hub Deaths Due to Alcohol Show Big Decrease

Deaths directly traceable to alcohol have decreased 50 per cent. in Boston since the advent of war-time prohibition.

Health Commissioner William C. Woodward is authority for this statement. Grouped under this head, he admits, are deaths from accidents, suicides and homicides, as well as alcoholism, when the circumstances show that alcohol was responsible for the deaths.

In the three months since prohibition took effect the monthly average of deaths from the use of alcohol has dropped from 85 to 42, and the total for the three months from 256 to 126.

There is no other reason for this decrease than prohibition, Dr. Woodward stated. In September, he said, there was only one death from acute alcoholism.

SENATE DEBATES 'DRY' BILL VETO

Hitchcock Obects to Putting Prohibition Ahead of the Peace Treaty

when Senator Sterling made a motion that the Senate take it up. Hitchcock argued that the Senate was in "open executive session" for the purpose of acting on the German peace treaty.

"I hope the Senator from South Dakota will not press his motion at this time. To do so would mean delay. The country demands action on the treaty," said Hitchcock.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas objected to the unanimous consent request.

UNDERWOOD WITH WILSON.

Senator Sterling subsequently offered a motion that the Senate "return to legislative business" to consider the vetoed bill.

Hitchcock moved to tabled the motion was debatable. Senator Nelson, Republican, Minnesota, contended it was debatable. Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, who was presiding, ruled it was debatable.

Senator Underwood, Democratic, of Alabama, said he would vote to sustain the President's veto, as he believed the main question was the "enforcement of law."

Senator Borah, the President vetoed war-time prohibition, was because those who proposed it "broke faith," he charged, proclaimed to the country they were not in favor of the drastic destruction of private business and property, that they were in favor of giving the men engaged in the liquor business an opportunity to wind up their affairs," Senator Underwood said.

"The President vetoed the bill because he "evidently believed the measure to be an improper one," Senator Hitchcock said. The merits of the bill or of the President's action he did not wish to pass upon, he added, but he did think the Senate "should proceed with consideration of the treaty."

"SHOULD ACT AT ONCE."

"The law always existed a doubt in my mind and the minds of many others regarding the constitutionality of the prohibition amendment," Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, interposed.

"The Senator does not grasp the President's veto message," Senator Underwood replied.

"Perhaps not. I have not been able to grasp many of his messages," was Borah's rejoinder.

"The question of the treaty has been debated by the Senator since last January, long before the present session began," Underwood continued.

"There is no justification of one more hour of indefinite delay on the treaty. The Senate has transgressed on the patience of the country long enough with unnecessary delay. Every man in this Senate knows now that the President's veto will be overridden, and we might as well act on it now."

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, leader of the "dry" forces in the Senate, said he "resented" Senator Underwood's charge that the prohibitionists had "broken faith" because of the proposed war-time prohibition enforcement.

"A YEAR OF GRACE."

"When have the liquor interests ever kept faith with the American people?" Sheppard asked.

He said the "understanding" that national prohibition enforcement was not to be put into effect until a year after its passage on January 16 last, was "only a year of grace," and as war-time prohibition had become effective on July 1, there was "no understanding expressed or implied that nothing was to be done to insure its enforcement."

Senator Borah asked him if a proclamation by the President declaring the army demobilized would mean lifting the war-time prohibition. Sheppard replied he "did not so understand," but that ratification of the German peace treaty must first be accomplished as well as demobilization before the President could proclaim war-time prohibition at an end.

Harry Reese, Milwaukee.
Three unidentified women.

A terrific gale from the northwest had driven the boat all night long on its trip across the lake from Milwaukee.

The vessel was just heading into her pier when the gale lifted a tremendous wave that drove the boat broadside against the dock, where she hung and was smashed to pieces by the sea.

Captain Edward Miller and First Mate Hallman ordered the passengers and crew to leap to the pier, and many of them, clad in their night clothes, made the leap in safety. Another wave, however, struck the boat and she went to the bottom five minutes after she struck the pier.

But for the fact that the boat hung to the pier for several minutes, it is believed all of the passengers and crew would have been drowned.

It was impossible to launch a boat to attempt any rescues, but several bodies were recovered by the coast life guard. The City of Muskegon, formerly town as the Holland, had been in service on the great lakes for twenty years. She was a side-wheeler.

BOY-ED TO BARE GERMAN PLOTS IN AMERICA

Expect Sensational Testimony When Naval Attache Answers Bernstorff in Berlin

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable Dispatch.

Berlin, Oct. 28.—Sensations may be sprung when Captain Karl Boy-Ed, former German naval attache to the embassy at Washington, testifies before the parliamentary committee investigating war responsibilities, plots and conspiracies, including those engineered in America.

In answer to Count von Bernstorff's testimony that Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen (the former military attache) operated independent of him (the ambassador) and worked under direct orders from Berlin, and that he, Bernstorff, had neither influence nor control over their actions, Captain Boy-Ed telegraphed to the chairman of the committee demanding that he be allowed to testify in his own behalf.

It is evident from Boy-Ed's attitude that he does not propose to be made the "goat" for all the keen speculation as to what he will tell of the orders given to him, and by whom. Stinging inferences are said to be at work not to let Boy-Ed and Von Papen testify.

REPORT ON RAILWAYS IS BEING PREPARED

Chairman Charles G. Washburn of the special street railways commission and Representative David J. Mahoney of Chelsea, as a sub-committee, were working today on their report. Chairman Washburn declared that if he remains the sole surviving member of the committee the report will surely be filed by November 15, the middle of November being generally understood as the limit for filing the report. He declared that if Mr. Mahoney were the sole survivor the report would be filed without fail.

MRS. LEVENSON'S YOUNG SON SAYS TERRY TOLD HIM HE LOVED HER

SHE TELLS OF WEDDED LIFE

Husband Suing Terry for $75,000 Says Fur Coat Aroused Suspicion

Pittsfield, Oct. 28.—Fifteen-year-old Irving Levenson took the stand today as a witness in the $75,000 alienation suit brought by his father against Raymond M. Terry of New York, and testified that Terry had confessed to him that he loved his mother, and wished her divorced so she could remarry.

The boy said that Terry was uniformly generous to him, and used to go to see him at Peekskill Academy.

Mrs. Helen Levenson, whose affections Morris Levenson charges the rich New Yorker with having stolen from him, took the stand immediately after her son. She is a slight woman, not weighing more than 100 pounds, and looks nearer twenty-two than the thirty-one years she admitted.

She was quietly dressed in dark brown and gave her answers without haste or excitement, but in a childlike treble.

She told of her marriage to Morris Levenson in New York when she was fifteen years old, and of her self-sacrifice to enable him to succeed in business. She said she had not for fifteen years missed a day at his office, where she assisted in clerical work, and described her household economies to swell the family budget.

J. F. Pell of New York testified that he was a friend of the family, and that Mrs. Levenson once appealed to him to act as peacemaker with her husband. Later she told him she wanted to get a divorce.

Morris Levenson took the stand early in the day. He said a $3,000 fur coat, in his wife's possession first warned him of her too-friendly relations with Terry.

MARRIED IN 1913.

Levenson told the story of his business and domestic life, and said that Terry admitted to him having had improper relations with his wife.

He said he was married December 4, 1913, when he was in the lumber business. He is now in partnership with his brother, Jacob, in the shipping business, and his income from one of ten steamers alone is $1,000 per month, he said. The couple have three children, Alfred, Charlotte and Edward, aged, eleven, thirteen and fifteen. The children have been away in school since the eldest was three, he testified, and under cross-examination he admitted that he has never written any one of them while they were away from home. The boys are now at Stamford Military Academy.

At the end of March of this year, he said, while living at the Harzgrave apartment in New York, he went home early one day, and his wife appeared in a new fur coat, which she said had been left her by her sister. The coat caused him to investigate and he found that Terry frequented her to prominent New York society people.

In June he started divorce proceedings, but dropped them when his wife promised to drop Terry. She didn't do so, he said, and he again began proceedings. In May he moved from the apartment to the Hotel Commodore, where he now lives.

He told of watching the apartment from the Sixth avenue elevated station. Since leaving the apartment, he said, he has given his wife $75 a month, the sons $150 a month and the daughter $50 a month.

CALLS BOSTON CITY OF FALSE DOCTRINES

Sir Dyce Duckworth of the Royal College of Physicians, London, who recently visited this city, writing his impressions, says:

"Boston is a perennial source of false doctrines, which produces and contains more unstable men and women than any other city I know.

"To prove this, I ask you to read the Saturday edition of any Boston newspaper and note the long list of so-called religious services advertised for the following Sunday."

ACCUSED OF STEALING WOMAN'S AUTOMOBILE

James L. Parker, twenty-two, of Florence street, East Somerville, was arraigned in the Somerville Court today charged with the larceny of an automobile. The case was continued to tomorrow, and he was held in $1,000 after pleading not guilty. It was charged that Parker stole an automobile owned at $900, the property of Mrs. Mary E. McEvoy, of No. 265 Washington street, Somerville. The car was found in a Cambridge garage.

GIRLS FORCED TO PAY $300 TO JOIN UNION

Haverhill, Oct. 28.—Initiation fees of $300 each have been imposed on the twenty girls employed in the E. C. Miller stitching room who failed to affiliate themselves with the Shoe Workers' Protective Association. The stitching room has been idle for a week, union girls refusing to work with the non-union stitchers. The fees have been paid under protest and the girls joined the union.

NEW BEDFORD BOY'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

New Bedford, Oct. 28.—John Selunda, eight, of No. 128 Cedar Grove street, is in St. Luke's Hospital with a fractured skull. He was struck by an automobile driven by Antone Perry of Fairhaven. The child ran in front of the machine.

BOSTON'S NEW POLICE IN NEW UNIFORMS

Arrayed in spotless new uniforms of a particularly "nifty" cut, twenty-seven of the city's newest policemen were lined up in Pemberton square today before they were sent out to the various divisions.

The new uniform resembles the dress of the mounted policemen of other days. The color and texture are the same. However, the coat is double-breasted, with a row of five buttons on each side. The cap has a roll visor, above which is pinned the number of the policeman's division. The overcoats, though the men did not wear them today, are double-breasted. More uniforms are expected tomorrow.

'L' LINES TIED UP IN RUSH HOUR

Thousands of workers chafed and fumed at various points on the "L" lines this morning when not a wheel turned between 7:15 and 7:35, and an intermittent tie-up of an hour and a half paralyzed the system.

A loss of steam in the power plant at City Point was the direct cause of the delay in transportation, which left the Elevated engineers were unable to account for.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the first symptoms of what was to become a general tie-up were felt in the South Boston tube. Trains were halted between stations, started now and again only to stop once more, and finally inched their way into stations after delays lasting from fifteen minutes to nearly an hour and a half.

It was not until shortly after 7 o'clock that the tie-up became universal over the system. Surface lines were halted, subways, tunnels and tubes were hopelessly entangled, while the congestion of workers at all stations and transfer points defied the efforts of the Elevated to relieve.

By arrangement with the Edison Company, darkness on the sub-surface lines was averted so that there was no sign of panic. However, the thousands hurrying to work were all the more peeved when they saw the lights were on, because they believed that there could be nothing wrong with the power. The Elevated, however, could not use the Edison current for motive power.

Weather conditions, drizzle overhead and dampness under foot, increased the inconvenience to those who were near enough their places of business to walk, but even this alternative was denied the thousands who were held up between stations.

South Boston lines stopped first, the tie-up in that congested district lasting for nearly an hour and a half. Roxbury was a close second, though the tie-up did not begin so early. The South End did not fall victim until nearly the end of the trouble, as the surface lines were operating practically on schedule. East Boston was badly tied up, as the tunnel was blocked soon after the trouble began and both ends were black with people.

HOPEDALE STARS IN WAR SECURITIES SALES

Hopedale, Oct. 28.—This town led all the other New England cities and towns in the total per capita sale of thrift Stamps, Saving Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates, according to announcement by Mrs. C. H. Buringame, statistical director, Savings Division, First Federal Reserve District. The per capita sales during this period amounted to $31. In the sale of government securities, moreover, Hopedale led New England for the month of September, the total amounting to $17,459.32, making a per capita sale of $6.55.

MEMORIAL MASS AT ST. FRANCIS DE SALES

There was a memorial mass today at St. Francis de Sales Church in Roxbury for all deceased members of the congregation and former clergymen. The mass was part of the program of the golden jubilee being celebrated by the parish. Rt. Rev. Mgr. Dennis J. O'Farrell, the rector, officiated. Rev. Francis V. Cummings was deacon, Rev. Patrick J. Lydon sub-deacon, and Rev. George P. O'Connor, master of ceremonies. The sermon was by Rev. Daniel F. Kelleher of St. Peter's Church, Lowell, former curate at St. Francis de Sales.

LAUDS AMERICAN FOR AID IN RECRUITING

Major Henry S. Keyes, in charge of recruiting for the army medical detachment on the Common, has commended the American for its aid in recruiting. His letter reads:

"To the Editor, Boston American: Your stories about the Army Medical Department recruiting party on Boston Common brought us an increase of a third over recruits last week."

COMPROMISE IN SCHOEFFEL WILL CASE

Judge White Orders a Partial Distribution of Big Estate

On October 16 Judge Alden B. White of the Essex County Probate Court, sitting in Boston, entered a decree to carry into effect a compromise agreement affecting the disposition of the estate of the late John R. Schoeffel, who died on August 21, 1915.

In a will made by Mr. Schoeffel on April 26, 1885, he left his entire estate to his widow, Maria Agnes Schoeffel, who died in 1919.

The heirs of Mr. Schoeffel claimed that after the death of his wife, Mr. Schoeffel made another will, and as it could not be found, the Probate Court allowed a copy which showed that the original was executed on September 28, 1912. Mr. Schoeffel left real estate valued at $112,859 and personal property to the amount of $294,541, and Judge White has ordered a partial distribution as follows:

Margaret E. Schoeffel, Elizabeth Cecilia Wolters, Florence Evelyn Celia Schoeffel and George John Schoeffel, $10,000 each; Albert M. Sheehan and Thomas J. Harry, $5,000 each; Cecilia Mossin, George J. Schoeffel and Bertha S. Dietz, $25,000 each; George G. Schoeffel, Francis C. Schoeffel, John R. Schoeffel and Susan R. S. Frost, $7,000 each; Louise R. Barnard and Elizabeth M. Black, $17,500 each; Margaret E. Schoeffel, $7,000; C. Frederick Wolters, Charles R. Wolters, Elizabeth C. Wolters, John W. Wolters, $8,750 each; Mary L. Schoeffel, Frank H. Bernard P., Walter L. and Raymond Schoeffel, $7,000 each.

Thomas J. Barry and Daniel A. Sullivan are to be paid $22,500 for services as administrators; Francis M. Carroll, attorney for Albert M. Sheehan, $1,500; Upton & Orcutt, counsel for George J. Schoeffel, $500, and William J. Lyons, $1,250, in addition to $750 previously paid for services rendered to the administrators.

PLAN RED CROSS DRIVE AT DINNER TONIGHT

Plans for the third Red Cross roll-call drive for members and money will be formulated tonight at a dinner at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, attended by chairmen of the Red Cross branches and roll-call committees in metropolitan Boston. The drive will be from November 2 to November 11 inclusive, metropolitan Boston's quota for membership being 200,000 and money $500,000. Tonight's meeting will be addressed by C. F. Weed, chairman of the metropolitan roll-call committee; Russell C. Fessenden, director of the home service section, department of civilian relief; Mrs. C. Ely, Grayson Stetson, metropolitan vice-chairman, and Thomas Drier, publicity chairman.

HARVARD FUND DRIVE DISPLAYS BIG SLUMP

Boston and New York showed a decided slump in their contributions to the Harvard endowment fund of $15,-250,000. The committee still is hopeful of securing Boston's quota of $6,-000,000. The totals at noon today were:

Boston	$3,342,945
New York	2,965,466
Outside	3,546,938

Boston women relatives of graduates or who have become interested in Harvard stand eighth in the twenty-three groups and their contributions up to last Saturday amounted to $95,000.

FAMOUS LENOX FARM SWEPT BY FIRE

Lenox, Oct. 28.—One man was severely burned and overcome by smoke and a valuable Clydesdale stallion and twelve other horses were burned to death when fire destroyed the stable and cow barn at the Old Shade Farm of Wellington Smith here early today. Sixteen blooded cows were saved.

The home of Superintendent Barber, with the carpenter and blacksmith shops, was saved, while a quantity of wagons, carriages, traps, harnesses and farming implements was burned, the total loss being placed at $75,000.

John Webster, who was overcome while sleeping in the upper part of the stable, was rescued by Roy Grady, another employe, who carried him to safety. The farm was one of the show places of this section, its owner being a well-known sportsman and breeder of fine cattle and hogs.

The fire, which started from spontaneous combustion about 2:30, was discovered by Newton Sparks, who, with Webster, was asleep in rooms located in the upper part of the stable. Sparks saved himself by leaping from a window.

The fire gained tremendous headway and by the time the firemen arrived it was impossible to save the stable. The employes and firemen managed to get all of the open air before the cow barn was destroyed.

In the stable were a number of valuable horses, the best of which was "Long Water Route Stee," a blue ribbon winner at the recent Springfield Fair, for which Mr. Smith refused $7,000. The others included two saddle and four coach horses.

Among the vehicles destroyed were a tally-ho valued at $5,000, a stage coach, depot wagon and coupe. Mr. Smith is secretary of the Smith Paper Company, and it is understood that his property was covered by insurance.

ONLY TWO DELEGATES ON HAND FOR LABOR MEET

Washington, Oct. 28.—Unless more delegates to the International Federation of Trade Unions conference here appear within the next few days the meeting is likely to be postponed, it was announced today.

The preliminary meeting of the conference scheduled for yesterday was postponed until today, in the belief that Japanese and British delegates will be on hand. Samuel Gompers, delegate from this country, and J. Hudgeget, delegate from England, were yesterday the two delegates present. At long thirty delegates from about fourteen countries were expected.

ARMY OFFICERS NEED MORE PAY, SAYS MUNSON

Washington, Oct. 28.—A plea for increased pay for army officers was voiced by Colonel E. L. Munson of the General Staff of the army before the Senate Military Affairs Committee today. Army officers are asking a 20 per cent. increase in pay. Colonel Munson said that did not cover the increased cost of food alone.

He pointed out that the cost of living for the enlisted man is 75 per cent higher than 1914. Clothing has increased 100 per cent and food 192 per cent, he said.

ROBERT M. BURNETT TO WED HIS SECRETARY

Robert M. Burnett, proprietor and manager of the Dearborn Farm at Southboro, and Miss Helen L. Haynes, his secretary for many years, will be married November 4 at the bride's home, No. 300 Audubon road, Brookline.

Mr. Burnett is one of the most prosperous farmers in New England. He is thirty-six years of age. The widower, Miss Haynes has been his secretary for a number of years. She is thirty-nine years of age. The wedding will be quiet and their home will be at Southboro.

The will of Edward Fountain of Woburn, who died October 16, 1919, has been filed, and names Edward F. Johnson of Woburn as executor. The estate is valued at $13,000.

GRAND JUROR IS GRILLED AT LONG TRIAL

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 28.—A sharp cross-examination that Attorney A. S. Sargent, a grand jurer and witness for the defense in the trial of George A. Long charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise C. Broadwell of Barre, underwent at the hands of Attorney-General Archibald enlivened today's court session. Sargent investigated the Broadwell murder on the morning the body was found.

Lena Belle Thurber, a nurse, was the first witness of the day. She testified to having attended a wedding on the evening of Saturday, May 3. On her way home she passed the house of Mrs. Isabel Parker. She saw a runabout automobile parked in the corner of the lawn, near the water tub. It had no lights. The car was pointing toward Ayer street. This was between 1:45 and 1:50 a. m. Sunday.

Ethel Hanley testified that in the morning of Sunday, May 4, he saw the defendant endeavoring to start an automobile in front of the Parker house.

SARGENT CALLED.

Attorney Sargent was the next witness. He told of having gone to Wheelock garden shortly after the body of Mrs. Broadwell was discovered. He said he observed a mark along the earth, more pronounced as it approached the body, as if something had been dragged. Attorney-General Archibald objected to this description, but it was allowed to stand.

A watch found on the scene had been handed to the witness, he stated. He also noticed a hat lying toward the alley opposite the Hotel Buzzell. The other other garments of the dead women were in a heap to one side.

The witness later visited the Buzzell Hotel, entering what was known as the Fraser room.

Q.—Describe the appearance of the room? A.—Well it looked as if there had been a fight there.

An objection by the Attorney-General brought an admonition to the witness by Judge Butler that he confine himself in telling what he saw.

"There was blood on the floor and around the bed," he said. "A cribbage board was also covered with blood. I found more blood, in a clot, on a gravel walk outside the hotel. An old pipe with a broken stem was also lying on the walk half full of tobacco."

QUESTIONED BY ARCHIBALD.

"Were you acting in your capacity as a grand juror when you made this examination?" asked the Attorney-General.

"I was telephoned to come down" began the witness.

"Wait a minute!" shouted the Attorney-General. "Answer my question. You are an attorney and know how to answer it. Were you acting officially as a grand juror?"

"I can't answer that," was the reply.

Q.—Didn't you tell Mr. Hoar that you were? A.—Yes.

Q.—Up to how many feet of Mrs. Broadwell's head did you discover a mark on the ground? A.—About two feet as I recollect.

Q.—Did you tell all that you observed of the conditions in the garden that morning? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Didn't you state in State's Attorney Davis' office that the indentation in the ground was not deeper than four feet to Mrs. Broadwell's head? A.—I didn't measure. By ground?

Q.—Answer my question. A.—I may have mentioned that statement.

Q.—Did you pick up a pocketbook near the body A.—Yes.

Q.—What were its contents? A.—It was empty.

Q.—Did you go to a jeweler's store some time that morning and take a watch there? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did you remain there? A.—I went out to inspect the Buzzell.

Q.—Don't you know that you yourself questioned Harry Broadwell in State Attorney Davis' office that morning? A.—That was after I left the Buzzell, about noon.

Q.—You say it was noon? A.—Ah.

The attorney-general started to ask another question, when Sargent interrupted, saying: "Oh, that's all."

Harry Gardner, deputy chief of the Barre police, stated that in the Fraser room at the Hotel Buzzell on the morning of May 4 he found blood on the floor and furniture, on the wall outside, on a towel spotted with blood in the bathroom. He also found a pipe that he said Fraser claimed as owner.

Attorney Sargeant was recalled by the defence. He was shown a bonnet, eyeglass frame, and stated that he saw similar headdress in the dead woman's hair, a photograph of the alley near the Hotel Buzzell was next placed on the stand. He identified tracks shown in the picture as having been there morning after the murder. He declared that these tracks showed a team had turned around in the alley.

Dorchester Pressmen Force Removal of 'Life' Cartoon

More than sixty pressmen employed by the Chapple Publishing Company, Ltd., of Dorchester, suspended work and refused to return until a cartoon which they claimed a stigma on organized labor was removed from "Life," a humorous weekly.

"Life" has been published by the Chapple company since the strike started in May. It was set up by Life Publishing company of New York.

The cartoon to which the pressmen objected to was immediately removed from the next weeks issue of Life, following a conversation over a long-distance telephone between the president of the Chapple company and the Life Publishing Company in New York.

The cartoon depicts a room, evidently in a saloon, in which a man is standing in a city lieutenant district. The artist, Harry Grant Dart, vividly portrays a man coming into the room over the head with the leg of a chair. The woman is shown on the floor, the

WOMAN HANGING CLOTHES KILLED IN 3-STORY FALL

While hanging clothes from the third-story porch of her home, No. 14 Talling Hinke, and Mrs. Sadie Hydra of No. 15 Morris street, Lane, fell to the ground and struck her head.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Hydra had been run off when the carriage was halted by one of the occupants. The men pounced upon the woman, but after refusing to work until the officers were removed.

POLICE CHASE BURGLARS; SAVE $100,000 LOOT

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 28.—In a spectacular chase down a Brooklyn early today, during which shots were fired and one man was nearly fatally injured, the police recover that valued at $100,000.

The police captured the gang while on the way to the scene of a robbery. The chase was witnessed in the surf, where the men attempted after exchanging shots with the police to escape in a motor boat. Another who gave his name as Louis Goodman, an iron worker, landed from a third story window, and was so badly injured he may die.

Outside of the building the police found a dozen loaded revolvers.

AMERICANS AWARDED $50,000 SALVAGE CLAIM

London, Oct. 28.—Fifty thousand dollars salvage money was awarded the crew of the American steamship Seminole for rescuing the crew of the disabled American freighter Multnomah, many days into the port of Queenstown. The award was made by the high court of admiralty before which the case of the Multnomah had been brought a year or so ago.

ASSASSINS OF AGED DOCTOR DEAN SHOWED REMARKABLE DARING

SLEW VICTIM 200 FEET FROM WAITING WIFE

The stores remain open on Tuesday evening until 9 p. m. Dr. Dean went down in his light-colored, rubber-tired rig drawn by the family horse, which was not any too brisk as a roadster. Dr. Dean never forced his horse. He was too considerate of the feelings of animals. He did not own an automobile.

The State and Federal records in the case say that he reached the village of East Jaffrey about 8:30, but a Boston American reporter found a witness, Mrs. Alice D. Burgoyne, who positively places Dr. Dean in the village as early as 8:45, and she saw him driving toward Jaffrey Centre, where the East Jaffrey brass band gave a concert that night, which was a local event of importance.

WITNESSES CORROBORATED.

This variance in time is important in that it corroborates two witnesses who claimed that they saw Dr. Dean and Charles L. Rich, cashier of the local bank and judge of the police court, standing together talking near the band stand. The county and State authorities doubted the testimony of the witnesses, who said they saw Dr. Dean at the concert, thinking that they must have made a mistake in his identity, but the witnesses claimed they knew Dr. Dean too well to be mistaken. At any rate, no evidence was given to their advantage.

But the New Hampshire authorities cannot ignore the testimony of a woman of the stamp of Mrs. Burgoyne, a disinterested and an unusually careful witness, who not only knew Dr. Dean well, but was favored by daylight when she saw him pass.

Mrs. Burgoyne lives about four minutes' walk from Main street. Her daughter is employed at Goodnow's store. She was not called before the Grand Jury. Two of her sons served overseas, and a third, who was too young to enter the army, died of the influenza during the epidemic, which, by the way, carried off quite a few of the witnesses in the Dean tragedy.

"On the evening of August 13, 1918, the date on which Dr. Dean was murdered," said Mrs. Burgoyne, "our committee, which was arranging for an entertainment to be given by the Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans, held a meeting. I left home about 6:45 and went to Goodnow's store, where my daughter is employed. Later, I started to walk to the home of Mrs. Frieda Prescott, which is on Main street, opposite the Catholic Church, on the way to Jaffrey Centre.

"Just before I reached Mrs. Prescott's I saw Dr. Dean drive past in his rig. He was going toward Jaffrey Centre, which was four miles than a mile beyond, and it was then not later than 8:45. I know I was in Mrs. Prescott's house by 9 o'clock. Later, I walked back to Goodnow's store. I saw Mr. Dean return about 9:40 or 9:45 and hitch his horse in the shed. He went into the store and carried bundles to his carriage. Then he walked to Main street.

SAW DR. DEAN AT CONCERT.

"I saw him return about 9 o'clock, or shortly after, unhitch his horse and drive past the store in the direction of his home. There was no one in the carriage with him. He was alone. I didn't see where he went after he passed. He might have gone to the Rich home. It was possible for him to have turned off, or to have gone straight home.

"My daughter and I waited until 9:20 for my son. He was to escort us home, and he was late, because it was a very hot night, and he went out for a swim in the pond. I saw numerous lights. One might see some lights and watch the flashes for heat lightning. We saw them another night and thought it queer when the stars were up, and when the weather was clear, and after that many others talked of seeing signals."

Mrs. Burgoyne's employer was said at the home of Mrs. Silas E. Buck, though she saw Dean and Rich at the band concert that night. She was not positive, but the impression was strong.

Thomas Shields of Jaffrey Centre, aged fourteen, a pupil in the high school, is positive that he saw Dean and Rich at the band concert that evening.

That Dr. Dean was at least in Jaffrey Centre early that night is certain. Mrs. Burgoyne is a witness among witnesses. She is extremely conservative.

The most known of Dr. Dean's movements that night was when he was seen to drive up to the horse shed near Goodnow's store about 8:30, a time when those on the street thought that perhaps he had just arrived from his farm. Most of the witnesses who saw him shopping say that he was in a hurry, and he seemed to had enough time for his purchases in several stores before closing time. Now Dr. Dean was a methodical man. If he had come direct from home he would have reached the store earlier. Something detained him. It was the concert at Jaffrey Centre, and perhaps those whom he met and talked with there.

MET HIM IN STORE.

Charles A. Bean, whose identity and activities will figure prominently in later instalments, saw Dr. Dean drive to the shed and noticed that he hitched his horse to the second ring. He fixes the time as about 8:30. He recalls having looked at his watch.

Dr. Dean was served by Charles Bables in Goodnow's store. He bought three dozen eggs, which came to $1.62; two pounds of raising, 25 cents; one package Pearline, 12 cents; one dozen lemons, 50 cents; oatmeal, 20 cents, and six tins of tobacco, 90 cents. The bill came to $3.75 and he added the cashier, Miss Florence Foyle, with a $5 bill.

He carried the parcels to his carriage. It was then 8:45, according to Mrs. Foyle's testimony. Bean saw him place his purchases in the back of his buggy and walk to Main street between the bank and Stratton's livery stable, towards Duncan's drug store.

Dr. Dean was seen to meet Miss Georgiana Hodgkins, sister-in-law of Cashier Rich of the bank, the school teacher from Long Island, N. Y., in the drug store.

Dr. Dean and Miss Hodgkins chatted for five or ten minutes.

Eaves, the drug clerk, says they left a few minutes before 9 o'clock. Dr. Dean asked for a dry cell battery in the drug store and at another store. It is thought that he wished to equip his flash light preparatory to keeping the midnight trysts to watch for signal lights, as agreed with Mrs. Morrison that night.

Police Officer Perley Enos saw Dean and Miss Hodgkins together outside the store. Miss Margaret Costello saw them between 8:55 and 9 o'clock. Yvonne Cheulnard saw them near the drug store at 9. He is known to have visited the laundry, where he left a bundle, and he bought currant bun at Vaughan's and Emma Chouinard, were playing bakery.

Miss Georgia Lynch, a local school teacher, made this statement, which is among the State records:

"On the evening of Tuesday, August 12, I first saw Mr. Dean at Goodnow's store. Sister Priscilla and I were at Goodnow's making some purchases. I do not know that Mr. Dean made any purchases. He was talking with Mr. Fay. When we went out of the store it was about 8:30 p. m. We then went over to Duncan's drug store, where we purchased sodas. Then Dr. Dean came in there.

PRESCRIBED FOR HIM.

"Miss Hodgkins was in there at the time. Miss Hodgkins went up and spoke to Mr. Dean and asked him how he was feeling. He said 'I am feeling fine,' and she said, 'That is good enough for anyone,' or 'As anyone could feel.' Then Mr. Dean asked her if she was going right up home and he said, 'I will drive you up.' And he said, 'If you have anything else to do, don't let me hurry you.' This was about 8:40 or 8:50 p. m. They then went out. Miss Hodgkins purchased writing materials. I did not see her purchase ice cream. Mr. Dean was dressed in short khaki pants and bright pink tie. He wore a coat."

Miss Hodgkins testified before the county that Dr. Dean drove her to the Rich house that night which is only a few minutes' walk from Goodnow's store, but nobody who saw Dr. Dean later saw him with Miss Hodgkins or anybody. Mrs. Burgoyne saw him unhitch his horse and drive in the direction of his home soon after 9 and he was alone.

But Cashier Rich and his wife corroborate Miss Hodgkins' story that Dr. Dean drove her home. The Richs claim Dr. Dean remained in their house until almost 11 o'clock.

Cashier Rich claims his horse kicked him in the eye that night, causing bruises and discoloration and that Dean prescribed alcohol and jocosely remarked that internal application might not go bad.

Other witnesses conflict with the time fixed by the members of the Rich household as to Dr. Dean's departure from the Rich and his wife says the moon had gone down and that it was so dark they loaned Dr. Dean a lantern, but no such lantern was found on the Dean premises.

Mrs. Chouinard, who lives a quarter of a mile outside the village on the road to the Dean farm, says she heard somebody warn her children out of the road, and looking out, she saw that it was Dr. Dean's horse. It was between 9:30 and 10 p. m. when he passed. Some-bound, because she retired at 10. The children, Germaine and Emma Chouinard, were playing with the Brayant boys.

Many in the village who doubt that Dean ever visited the Rich home that night.

Mrs. Howard claims she saw Dean drive "straight up the road." The contents of his stomach and the process of indigestion indicate that he was killed in the vicinity of 11:30.

Johnny Bryant, who with his brother was playing in the road with the Chouinard children, saw Dean pass and ask Mr. Bingham, who thought he looked ill, about it. Mr. Bingham says Dr. Dean did not answer him in his usual cheerful manner that night.

Mrs. Dean claimed at the time and did not change the long in her statements for a year thereafter, that her husband returned about 9:30, his customary time, when he went to the village. This time would dovetail with Mrs. Burgoyne's statements that she saw him unhitch his horse and pass Goodnow's store and drive up the road alone shortly after 9 o'clock. At an ordinary jog it would take a half hour to reach the Dean farm.

Mrs. Dean said Dr. Dean brought in the bundle, put the horse up at the barn, returned to the bungalow and left his best coat and vest with his watch and a small amount of money, in the bedroom upstairs, put on an old working coat, ate some of the current buns and drank some milk, and took the lantern and strainer pail to the barn to milk the cow. He asked her to have a hot supper when he returned at midnight. Obviously he had that appointment about watching for the lights, as agreed with Mrs. Morrison, in mind.

Mrs. Dean had a hot supper ready and waited. Finally she became alarmed. She wondered why he did not return. She told the searchers next day that she feared he had wandered into the marsh in the dark, a dread that she had entertained for a long time, she said.

While she waited she dozed. She was afraid to go out to investigate in the dark. It would require courage in a man to do so, as the farm was quite a distance from the bungalow, and their estate was isolated in rough mountain country with the nearest house a mile away. Hour after hour she waited, but her husband never returned.

That visit kept by Mrs. Dean, an invalid in mind and body, and for months so helpless that she had to be served like a child, alone in a lonely mountain home, the clock ticking solemnly, the supper growing cold on the table and at such an uncanny hour and under such weird circumstance, with murder going on close by, murder of one she loved better than her life, stands out as one of the most dramatic features of the tragedy.

For, while Mrs. Dean waited with increasing anxiety, the men who had slain her husband were leisurely swathing and binding his body with horse blanket, burlap and rope and weighting it to drop in a cistern nearly 200 feet away from the barn and directly under the kitchen window of the original Dean house on the brow of the hill, the house that the Dean's rented.

The assassins did not fear interruption and detection by Mrs. Dean, the frail widow was set and wondered beside the shaded lamp in the bungalow in the hollow. They knew she did not have to be reckoned with and that she was the only one on the premises.

But with all their knowledge and confidence they did not dare to carry the body to the larger well near the bungalow window, because Mrs. Dean might hear them there. Instead they bore the body uphill to the cistern of the other house, a cistern the location of which they knew in the dark and which a stranger would have difficulty in finding in daylight. The murderers of Dr. Dean were no strangers to him or his premises. Every detail of the murder proclaims that. And this is a feature which should be borne in mind by the New Hampshire officials, because it narrows the scope of inquiry and gives strength to much of the evidence in the case.

Continued Tomorrow.

Synopsis of Dr. Dean Mystery

Dr. William Kendrick Dean, gentleman farmer, physician and scholar, was clubbed, gagged and strangled to death at his mountain home on the outskirts of East Jaffrey, N. H., on the night of August 13, 1918, and his body, shrouded in burlap and horse blanket and weighted with a stone, was dropped in a well on his estate.

He knew much about German spy activities in that mountain region and was murdered twelve hours after he had asked a wealthy woman neighbor to hasten to Boston and tell the Department of Justice officials to send up one of their best men to hear and act on his story. He was dead before she left Jaffrey next morning, ignorant of the tragedy until she read about it in a Boston newspaper.

Dr. Dean had received a threatening letter in June, and in July had asked a Jaffrey policeman to seek police protection in the event of an emergency, saying, "I have lived in the farm twenty-eight years and have never been molested until now." The first instalment appeared in the Boston American of Wednesday, October 22.

BAKERS BEGIN THEIR VICTORY CONVENTION

That bakers have been uniformly free from the reproach of profiteering was the claim of every speaker at the victory convention of the New England Bakers at the Hotel Brunswick today. Speakers said that while wheat had advanced 175 per cent. in price, bread had increased only 75 per cent. The convention opened with bakers from all parts of New England present, and with Victor A. Friend of Melrose in the chair. It will last until tomorrow night. Secretary of State A. P. Langtry welcomed the delegates in behalf of Governor Coolidge. Speakers included E. B. Harris and Mrs. Harris of Waterville, Me.; D. P. Windblom of Chicago, and Gordon Smith of Mobile, Ala., president of the American Baking Industry Association.

COASTWISE SHIPPING OF BOSTON ON INCREASE

Coastwise shipping via Boston and other Atlantic ports will have increased to pre-war proportions within three years, Professor Henry R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania testified today before Judge Morton and a jury in United States District Court. Professor Johnson was the principal witness today in the hearing which is to decide the price the government must pay for the Cape Cod Canal. He testified that the coastwise tonnage passing Pollock Rip Slue was 25,465,000 tons gross in 1909, but that during the war it fell off to 18,103,833 gross tons annually. He predicted that it would have risen again to 34,500,000 tons by 1932, and to 46,200,000 tons by 1942.

BOHEMIAN SAILS WITH A HEAVY MAIL CARGO

Leyland Liner Carries 117 Passengers, Mostly for Ireland

The Leyland line steamship Bohemian sailed from East Boston for Liverpool at noon today with 117 passengers and 12,000 tons of miscellaneous cargo. The ship took out 11,500 sacks of mail, with one exception the largest mail ever carried from Boston on a vessel.

The mail came on an early train from New York and was hauled to the pier in ten big trucks, and delayed the sailing for about an hour while it was being put on board. It originally was intended for ships going out from New York, but the dock strike at that port has held up the sailing of these vessels.

The passengers were, for the most part, destined for Ireland, some to visit their old homes and others to remain. The cargo included 13,000 barrels of apples, the largest shipment of the new crop, 1,200,000 pounds of tobacco, 44,000 bushels of grain, and an immense quantity of merchandise.

TO BUILD SHELTERS AT EVERETT TERMINAL

Patrons of the Boston Elevated Railway living in Everett, Malden and other communities in that section using the Everett terminal of that company's trains soon will have ample shelter at the station. Today the Public Service Commission authorized the company to build shelters over the two out-going tracks there, which will enable patrons to change from cars to trains without being exposed to inclement weather conditions.

HOT TODAY, BUT COLD WAVE IS NEAR

This Is Warmest October 28 on Local Record; High Mark 78

"Weather it's cold or weather it's hot,
We must have weather, whether or not."
—Ballads of the Weather Bureau.

Today was the hottest October 28 in the history of the local Weather Bureau, the mercury reaching a high mark of 78 between 12 and 1 o'clock.

This condition is but temporary, however, according to the justly esteemed weather man, who explained that Boston and vicinity would be subjected to a dropping temperature late tonight, with probably heavy fronts.

Today's extreme heat, he pointed out, was due to the fact that superheated atmosphere from the South arrived and tarried here for a time before passing out to sea.

The official forecast was:

"Fair with much lower temperatures tonight and Wednesday; strong westerly winds and gales."

From a temperature of 62 at 2 o'clock this morning, the mercury rose to 70 at 11 o'clock, jumping to 78 at 12:45.

ATTEND MASS FOR SOUTH BOSTON HERO OF WAR

At St. Augustine's Church, Dorchester street, South Boston, an anniversary mass was celebrated for the repose of the soul of Michael J. Perkins, who was awarded a medal of honor for bravery in the battle of Belleau Woods during the world war. The Rev. Henry Lyons was the celebrant. Many women from the American Legion Auxiliary were present, as were also many members of the Michael J. Perkins Post, including Commander A. J. L. Ford.

CLEANING your teeth is not for amusement. Because you enjoy the taste of a dentifrice is no proof that your teeth benefit.

On the other hand, powerful alkaline drugs in dentifrices are as dangerous as agreeable flavors are harmless and useless.

Dangerous because such alkalines check the flow of saliva which is Nature's only agent for destroying the bacteria of food decay.

Mennen Cream Dentifrice was designed to clean teeth, not to tickle the palate. It contains a fruit acid which activates the salivary glands and helps the saliva do the work that Nature intended.

A 20% content of alcohol assures an antiseptic action.

It cleans and polishes the teeth without scouring or grinding. It breaks down tartar formations and removes tobacco stains.

It is refreshing to use and leaves the mouth cool and clean.

Mennen's is concentrated. Half an inch is plenty. It costs 35 cents.

HEARST WILL NOT DEBATE WITH SMITH

Says He Has No Time to Meet Public Plunderers Exposed in His Newspapers

By Universal Service.

New York, Oct. 28.—In answer to an invitation by Colonel Jefferson De Mont Thompson, chairman of the committee of 100, to meet Governor Alfred Smith of New York in a public debate in Carnegie Hall on the latter's administration, William Randolph Hearst declared that he had no intention of meeting the Governor, either publicly or privately, politically or socially.

"I do not have to meet him, as I am not running for office; and I certainly do not want to meet him for the pleasure of the association, as I find no satisfaction in the company of crooked politicians," Mr. Hearst wrote to Colonel Thompson.

EVERY RASCAL TRIES COMEBACK.

"Neither have I time nor inclination to debate with every public plunderer or faithless public servant whom my papers have exposed, for the reason that every pilloried rascal in every city where my papers are published always tries to divert attention from the real issue of his political crookedness by making some sort of a blatherskite onslaught on me.

"I have no explanations to make for attacking the milk trust and traction trust and the politicians who have surrendered to these rich and powerful plundering corporations, and are committed to twenty-cent milk and ten-cent street car fares.

"I have no apologies to make for not supporting the judicial section hands of the New York Central Railroad or any of Mr. Murphy's handpicked appointments to the bench.

SMITH'S PERJURED PLEDGE.

"The only apology I would have to make would be for having supported Governor Smith, and that I did because of the perjured pledge of that individual made publicly in my papers on August 1, 1918.

"I had no confidence in the progressive sentiments of Candidate Smith, and in reply to his request for support I asked for a public pledge, as the private assurances of men of his type have no weight with me whatever."

"And, in conclusion," Mr. Hearst wrote to Colonel Thompson, "Let me say that if you gentlemen are going to hire Carnegie Hall every time my papers expose rascally politicians you would better take a long term lease on the property.

"Carnegie Hall," Mr. Hearst declared, "was hired by Tammany before the hall was turned over to Colonel Thompson."

ARMY OFFICER IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Wife Much-Visited by Young Man While He Was at War, Is Testified

After evidence that his wife, Ida May Gidney, had been much-visited while he was away in the army, Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert A. Gidney, of the Ordnance Department, U. S. A., was granted a divorce.

A former maid of Mrs. Gidney testified concerning the attentions a young man named Harris of Greenwood paid to her mistress. The maid, Nellie Cunningham, testified that Mrs. Gidney would see the young man two or three times a week and sometimes every day. She said she would take telegrams or phone for Harris to meet her at times at the Oak Grove station, and she said she was urged by Mrs. Gidney not to divulge these facts.

Mr. Gidney and his wife went to Akron, O., in the Fall of 1916 and returned after Christmas of the same year. She gave birth to a child in a hospital. The child was not his, it was claimed. She signed a confession at a hospital, he said, and then went to California, taking their daughter with her. The child born in the hospital was adopted by a family, it was stated.

When Harris was in the army, Mrs. Gidney wrote to him from California, but the letters failed to reach him, and Mrs. Gidney then wrote to his mother. The latter requested an attorney to appear in court at the trial of the divorce case to see if Mrs. Gidney complied and not be prevented from writing to her son.

ITALY ACKNOWLEDGES U. S. FRIENDSHIP

Washington, Oct. 28.—Tittoni, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Italy, has expressed acknowledgment of the friendship of the United States in the following diplomatic message received by the State Department:

"I must thank you for your condolences on the death of Count Cellere, of whom I was a sincere friend. The Italian government have deeply felt his loss and I need not say how much they have appreciated the expressions of cordial sympathy of your countrymen you were so good to convey to me. We consider it as a new testimony of the true friendship existing between the Americans and the Italian nation."

MAN LOSES LIFE, 22 HORSES DIE AT FIRE

Twenty-two horses were burned to death and hundreds of North End residents driven from their homes when a two-alarm fire destroyed the livery stable owned by Capone & Bellacqua at Nos. 523-527 Hanover street today and threatened to sweep the entire tenement section. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

Antonio Fiacchi lost his life during the fire. He died of natural causes, according to Medical Examiner Magrath. The man staggered out of the house next door to the burning stable with a large trunk on his back. At Commercial and Hanover streets he dropped the trunk and then fell himself. He was taken to the Relief Station in the ambulance of the Hanover street division, where Dr. Breslin pronounced him dead. At the North Grove street morgue Dr. Magrath made his decision.

The horses that were burned met their death like rats in a trap. They were quartered on the second floor of the building with no one in the building to release them and with no way of escape.

SHOTS FIRED AS ALARM.

The blaze was discovered by H. B. Lafoly, who notified State Guardsmen who were on duty in the section. In order to attract the attention of the residents in the vicinity several shots were fired by the guardsmen. On hearing the shots hundreds of people living in the section rushed to the street.

The building is a three-story wooden building. The first floor is occupied as a blacksmith shop and wagon storage house. Seventeen wagons were destroyed in the fire.

The second floor is used as the stable and the third floor as a harness shop and for the storage of hay and grain.

The premises are located near the foot of Hanover street, near the Chelsea Ferry. The frontage faces the Lowney chocolate factory and the rear faces the Quincy Cold Storage plant on Constitution Wharf.

The following families occupy homes in the near vicinity and were driven to the street:

RESCUED THEIR FAMILY.

At No. 529 Hanover street, adjoining the livery stable, the house is occupied by Mrs. Annie Tagliere, a widow with ten children, the oldest being a son, Lawrence. The house is a two-story wooden building and most of the children were asleep on the upper floor.

The mother and oldest son effected a sensational rescue of the younger members of the family.

They are Peter, aged nine months, who Mrs. Tagliere carried in her arms while she directed the other members of the family to safety; Lawrence, John, Alfred, Bruno, Tony, Rosa, Lena, George and Josephine. All ranging in age from nine months to eighteen years.

On the second floor Joseph Cargelo, his wife and five children, Delli, Mary, James, Ada and Joseph were all asleep. These other families occupy the premises. All were driven to the street by the flames.

At No. 523 Hanover street the house is occupied by Mrs. Mary Gaglino and her two children, Lena, aged eight, and George, aged twelve. They were all driven to the street.

At No. 521 Hanover street, Carmine Caputo and his six children Margaret, Gertrude, Lena, Mary, Frank and Joseph, were all asleep. They were awakened by State guardsmen in time to make their way to the street in safety.

Even in 'These Parlous Times' One Can Lunch for 20 Cents

What does the lunch for which you pay from 40 cents to a dollar every noon actually cost?

Would you be surprised to learn that it can be served at cost for 20 cents?

A price list put out by the new cafeteria which has been opened by the Boston branch of Swift & Company for the Swift employes, indicates that it can.

Here's the twenty-cent lunch which the Swift people are offering: Lamb stew with dumplings or pot roast, scalloped potatoes, buttered beets, rolls or bread and cheese, cake or pie.

Remember that the Swift Company is not a charitable institution, and plans to lose no money on the venture. It has to buy certain articles on the open market, as do the restaurant proprietors and hotel men of Boston, who charge from 60¢ and one half time four and one half times as much for the same food.

WHO GETS THE PROFIT?

Who gets the profit from your seventy-cent lunch check, Mr. Downtown Worker?

Prices for the twenty-cent meal range as high as ninety-five cents in the "popular priced" hotels. Restaurants do not serve such combinations, but for a like quantity of food do not even approximate the low prices quoted.

The Swift people plan to serve only the best food, and under conditions insuring absolute cleanliness. They do not plan to punch more holes in your check for fancy-tile pictures on the walls or ruhber plants in the window.

The twenty-cent lunch is not an accidental bargain on the Swift menu, as is proved by a glance at the following prices:

Lamb stew with dumpling	10 cents
Pot roast	10 cents
Scalloped potatoes	5 cents
Buttered beets	5 cents
Bread, per slice	1 cent
Cheese, per slice	1 cent
Oleomargarine	1 cent
Potato soup	5 cents
Italian rice	5 cents
Apple pie	5 cents
Hasha pie	5 cents
Rice pudding	5 cents
Strawberry ice cream	5 cents
Jonathan apples	5 cents
Coffee	5 cents
Milk, per bottle	5 cents
Milk, per glass	3 cents

Thompson's Spa charges 9 cents for bread and butter, 15 cents for rice with cream, 20 cents for all soups, 15 cents for all pies, 20 cents for an order of ice cream, 15 cents for a baked Jonathan apple with cream and 10 cents for coffee or milk.

Marston's price for soup is 20 cents, but includes bread and butter, which is extra at Thompson's Spa. This item is also included with all fish, meat and salad orders at Marston's. The prices of other items in the Thompson list are the same as Marston's restaurants.

Lamb stew at Young's Hotel is 70 cents for a single portion. The following prices of other articles served there are for double portions: Scalloped potatoes 25 cents, buttered beets 30 cents, potato soup 20 cents, rice with cream 20 cents, strawberry ice cream 20 cents. Pies are 25 cents per order, coffee or a bottle of milk 15 cents.

The Waldorf restaurants do not specialize in vegetables except when a part of the meat order. Bread and butter is 5 cents an order, soup 15 cents, rice with cream 15 cents, pies and puddings 10 cents; ice cream is served in 5 and 10-cent orders, coffee 5 cents, milk in bottles 10 cents and 5 cents a glass.

10 TO 70 CENTS FOR LUNCH.

"So much depends upon the size of the portion," said the manager of dining rooms at Young's Hotel. "Also it must be considered whether the meal is served on Irish linen and with silver."

An executive of the Thompson Spa said his company had a rule not to give out their prices for publication. Those obtained were copied from the menu posted on the walls. It is estimated that the downtown worker spends on an average of from 40 cents to $1 daily for his lunch.

LONG REITERATES CHARGE OF POLITICAL TRICKERY

Richard H. Long, Democratic candidate for Governor, in a long distance telephone communication from Washington, told his supporters in Boston of having sat all day in the committee room where the Graham Congressional committee is receiving evidence in regard to his war contracts. He reiterated that the whole affair is being carried on on the basis of political trickery.

"It is a scheme of the Republicans to defeat me for Governor," he said, "and is so transparent that the voters of Massachusetts will not be deceived in the least."

BRITISH TO SELL U. S. GREAT AIR LINERS

London, Oct. 28.—British dirigibles, including the giant R-38, a sister ship to the R-34, which made the trans-Atlantic voyage to America, may form the nucleus of a great American air fleet. It was learned today that the American Navy Department has purchase other balloons from the British government in addition to the R-38, as the British Admiralty, in the interests of economy, has decided to sell all but two of its rigid dirigibles, which will be kept for use by the navy. A British crew will take the R-38 to the United States and spend several weeks instructing the American air sailors in the handling of the craft.

JEWISH FUND IS INCREASED BY $27,000

Charity Drive Leaders Plead for $40,000 a Day to Win Total by Friday

With but three days left in which to gather pledges for the $400,000 campaign for the Federated Jewish Charities which officially comes to an end at a final meeting of the captains and workers at the City Club next Friday, every effort is being made by the campaign officials to bring home to the members of the local Jewish community the urgent need of responding liberally to the appeal for funds.

At the luncheon held at the City Club, $27,000 in pledges were reported by the various trade and professional teams. Louis P. Kirstein, campaign director, Julius Morse and Max Mitchell stated that more stimulated effort must be made to put the campaign successfully across. It will take about $40,000 a day from now to the close of the drive to reach the total, according to the officials.

Several telegrams of congratulation on the progress of the drive were read. Fred M. Butzel, president of the National Conference of Jewish Charities, Detroit, Michigan, said:

"Sincere is hope that the Federation Campaign in Boston will be a huge success. The Federation movement is at the critical stage and the future of our charities deems upon the support of the movement in other cities where it has been commenced."

The reports of the teams follow: Cigars and tobacco, $2,249; hardware, $430; men's and women's apparel, $2,000; wool, $1,600; woolens, $1,095; cotton waste, $1,150; furniture, $1,165; graphic arts, $360; druggists, $205; furnishings, $3,475; surance, $315; autos, $528.

SUSPEND SENTENCE OF ATTLEBORO PLAYER

Attleboro, Oct. 28.—William Glennon of North Attleboro, well known as a baseball player, and at one time on the roster of the Red Sox, was sentenced to six months in the house of correction in New Bedford for larceny. The sentence was suspended.

COOLIDGE GAINS AMONG WORKERS, SAYS BAXTER

That the tide in the leading industrial centres of the State is beginning to turn in favor of Governor Calvin Coolidge, and that Republicans in the smaller communities are being aroused to the necessity of hard and sustained work is the gist of a statement issued by Charles S. Baxter, who is directing five flying squadrons of speakers throughout the State, after receiving long-distance telephone reports today from the captains of the speaking crews.

Several more speakers joined the flying squads today at various points, including Senator Arthur Nason of Haverhill, former Assistant District Attorney William H. McSweeney of Salem, Lieutenant Joseph A. Langone of Boston, Fred J. Doggett of Boston and two former Progressive leaders, Representative George Pearl Webster of Hosford and former Representative Alfred E. McCleary of Maynard.

FINDS CHORUS GIRLS TOO YOUNG TO VOTE

New York, Oct. 28.—Political campaigning among the theatrical people is sure going to have its drawbacks from now on. This was revealed today by Miss Bertha Rembaugh, candidate for a municipal court judgeship, who declared that she went behind the scenes at one theatre, but out of seventy-five chorus girls not one would admit she was old enough to vote.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray, streaked or faded hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ½ ounce of glycerine."

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Contentment and Happiness will be more general in Massachusetts with

Richard H. Long AS Governor

He Is Honest and Fearless!

He has a faculty of bringing order out of confusion, harmony out of discord.

Governor Coolidge and the machine that gave him every office permit corporations and wealth to take extortionate toll from the pockets of the people. The Boston Elevated bill is typical. The people of Greater Boston, including the Republican mayors, unanimously condemn it.

Richard H. Long will be just to wealth, but he also demands justice for the workers who create prosperity—the wage earners, school teachers, clerks, State, City and town employees, and the small business man.

The corrupt interests, conscious of impending loss of control, are summoning their every friend and tool, inside and outside the State, to defeat Long and make Massachusetts safe for the plunderers of the people.

Long's thousands of contented employees know him and trust him.

The people, by his overwhelming primary vote, showed their trust in him.

Business men who want a broad-minded, liberal man for Governor advocate his election.

The only people who fear his election are the corrupt interests.

Long would be elected by 50,000 today. He will be elected November 4th by more. Watch his majority grow.

Long advocates these safe and progressive measures:

A graduated income tax to make the billion-a-quarter of Massachusetts' big incomes pay its share of tax burdens.

Recognition of the Service man.

The five-cent carfare and restoration of abandoned service.

State ownership of the trolleys and the elimination of Water and Graft.

State ownership and development of water power, saving two million tons of coal annually and safe-guarding against a coal famine.

Humane and conciliatory adjustment of labor troubles.

RASCALS

Biliousness, Headache, Colds, Constipation, driven out with "Cascarets"

Why take nasty cathartics, sickening salts, or stomach-turning oils to drive those rascals out? Let gentle, harmless Cascarets remove the liver and bowel poison which is making you bad dizzy, your tongue coated, you skin sallow, your breath offensive and your stomach sour. Get a box of Cascarets at the drug store and clean your liver, stomach and bowels of the excess bile, poisons, and waste which are keeping you miserable. Cascarets never gripe, never sicken, never inconvenience. They cost so little and work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

FIREMEN 'GIVE LIE' TO G. G. A. ASSERTIONS

Boston firemen in their fight for a two-platoon system today replied to the Good Government Association, which is in line against the proposition. The firemen, in a statement issued by Joseph W. Fitz, chairman of the two-platoon committee, declare that the whole policy of the Good Government Association has been to oppose any suggestion for the betterment of the firemen's conditions.

The statement of the firemen reads:

"The Good Government Association publicly opposes the two-platoon system for the Boston Fire Department. This opposition is to be expected. If the Good Government Association has ever expressed a single recommendation that has assisted the firemen to improve their living conditions, or to relieve their hardships of service, the memory thereof persists not. The association contributes no merit in the plan, but on the contrary seeks to demonstrate its worthlessness by statements alleged to have been made by officials in other cities.

"We are aiming in behalf of ourselves and fire fighters to improve our lot in life, and it is unfair to have our endeavors confused by the critics who apply industry and its figures regarding the two-platoon system.

"1—The Good Government Association says that: 'The two-platoon system was adopted by Chicago and has since given up because unsatisfactory.' Again in 1907 with the same result.'

"Fire Marshal Thomas O'Connor of the Chicago Fire Department says: 'The two-platoon system has been in effect in the Chicago department since April 1, 1911, and the change is giving splendid satisfaction.

"2—The Good Government Association says: 'In the city of Buffalo the two-platoon system is a disappointment from the standpoint of discipline and contentment among the men.'

"E. P. Murphy, Chief of the Buffalo Fire Department, says: 'We installed the two-platoon system on July 1, 1918, and have no reason to regret our action. On the contrary we are highly pleased with it and feel now that we could not return to the old system without a great loss in efficiency and a possible danger.'

"3—The Good Government Association says: 'New York tried the system in 1906 for six months in part of its force, and the men themselves voted overwhelmingly to go back to one day in seven.'

"Thomas J. Drennan, Fire Commissioner of the City of New York says, on September 26, 1919: 'Since the installation of the two-platoon system on June 16, the efficiency of the department has not been decreased in any way. In my opinion it has been increased by the better morale and happier conditions obtaining among the men.'

"4—The Good Government Association says: 'Omaha finds individual efficiency not as good.'

"Charles A. Salter, Chief of the Omaha Fire Department, says on September 23, 1919: 'In my opinion, the two-platoon system is a much better system than the twenty-four-hour system; the men and their families are all better satisfied with their lot, because they are receiving the same conditions given to other working classes. We would not return to the old system if we could.'

"This is the spirit of the campaign against us. The statements that we quote are absolutely bona fide over the signatures of the officials making them.

Pile Sufferers! Clever Ohio Chemist Says This Great Prescription Taken Internally Has Never Failed

Most chronic cases of 20 to 30 years standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely relieved in from three to ten days.

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused such a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully cured and relieved right in the home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists here the Pyramid Pile Remedy.

It has been proved that so called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief, while in also true of surgical operations which simply remove them after formation, but do little else at on the source of the trouble.

This prescription, although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly passed on unchanged to the intestines in a short time, reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action it first allays all inflammation and then by direct contact with all ulcers and sores, causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It's positively marvelous how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days at most, even in cases with profuse bleeding that have yielded to no known treatments and operations really wonderful results have been attained.

The author of this amazing discovery feels that sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless they are entirely satisfactory. Consequently any one sending their name and address will be instructed by the W. R. Hunt Co. to Cambridge and Roxbury Crossing, and drug stores everywhere the country, to guarantee with every case of blind, bleeding or protruding piles.

IMPORTANT—What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Mirror Pile Ointment has been prepared as in such cases it is not necessary to take the internal prescription.

HUB WOMAN PAYS $35,000 FOR A NECKLACE

Talk about the man who paid $100,000 for a first edition of Shakespeare! He had nothing on a Boston woman just discovered by the American who has paid $35,000 for a pearl necklace for her six-year-old granddaughter.

And still another to add to the high cost of marrying.

Some ardent swain in Boston has just paid $9,000 for an emerald engagement ring for his intended.

They're selling silk stockings for ladies at $12.50 the pair, and corsets—well, if you get them from some exclusive Boylston street shop at—only $100 the piece—rather the garment. No, they call it the pair.

Incidentally, this little granddaughter, with the $35,000 pearl necklace is going to be some financial catch along about 1932, when she is twenty-one, for the little string of pearls about her neck will stand for about $75,000 of Uncle Sam's banknotes.

Have you bought your Rolls-Royce yet? We hear one can get a perfectly good 1920 automobile for around $35,000.

AIRPLANES AID IN SPECIAL MAP WORK

The camera is simplifying the task of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Aerial photographs have been found to be more accurate than the old method of making maps by survey as well as easier and quicker. Airplanes have been assigned to the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the Geological Survey Department for this work. Recruits for the navy are given the opportunity of specializing in photography. The work consists principally of aerial map-making.

TIES TRUANT SONS IN CHAIRS TO GO TO COURT

After having tried other expedients to get her two small sons, Edward, aged nine, and Arillio, aged ten, into court, Mrs. Catherine Marotto, a widow, of No. 17 Fremont street, tied them to chairs, pending the arrival of a policeman. The boys were charged with habitual truancy. While their mother was taking them to court last week they ran away and were gone two days. Judge Sisitsvant gave them a severe lecture and continued their cases until Saturday.

PURCHASERS OF STOLEN SHOES ALARMED

Bristol, R. I., Oct. 28.—The fact that town and State officials, together with other prominent men, have been wearing shoes stolen from the New Haven Railroad, was divulged today.

The information became public when it was learned that the office of the United States Marshal at Providence had communicated with each of the officials who took advantage of a recent bargain sale here. They were informed that the shoes were part of an enormous quantity of lost stolen from the railroad, and that they must be sent to the office of the marshal.

This announcement created a furore in the town and resulted in a scramble to get the shoes back.

According to the marshals office, a shipment of stolen shoes was purchased in good faith at extremely low prices by a local dealer.

Four cases of the shoes were immediately placed on sale at bargain prices. Many of the townspeople took advantage of this sale, including town and State officials, politicians and members of the police force, who bought several pairs. It is understood that one of the men to refund to a Federal official, who declared that rewards were not immune from prosecution. The names of all purchasers were said to have been given the Federal officials.

According to the authorities this was the first step in a campaign to recover large quantities of stolen merchandise, largely made up of shoes. It was stated that stolen shoes have been on sale in a number of cities in this State, together with cities in Massachusetts, and at a point distance from the Rhode Island line. Action is expected to be taken in these places within a short time.

TWO PEDLERS WITH FALSE SCALES FINED

Maximum fines of $10 each were paid by George P. Hoffnos and Peter Orphanass, both fruit peddlers, residing on Parmenter street, in Boston, in Court today, after they had been found guilty of having false scales in their possession with intent to use. "The public is paying enough for what it actually needs without paying for something it does not get," remarked Judge Ahearn.

LOST LAUNDRY CHECK LEADS TO ASSAULT

"No checkee, no shirtee," landed Fang Lee, 60, a laundryman of Maverick street, East Boston, in police court today. Judge Brown held him in $100 for a hearing Thursday on a charge of assault and battery on James Bradley of No. 56 Liverpool street. The police say Bradley, who is 25 years old, lost his check. Lee refused to give him the laundry, and, according to Bradley, assaulted him.

REPORT ACTRESS A 'SUPPOSED SUICIDE'

New York, Oct. 28.—Marie Empress, favorite of the London music halls who came New York by steamship years ago with her beauty, was reported a "supposed suicide" to United States custom officers when the Cunard liner Cedonia, arrived from Liverpool without her.

Miss Empress was a passenger on the steamer when it left for the United States and was last seen at 9 o'clock Saturday evening, two hours after the ship left Halifax, N. S. A trunk and one cabin bag, for a stewardess to have been served to her stateroom.

Three hours later the stewardess visited the stateroom in accordance with custom to see if Miss Empress needed anything. She found the room deserted. On Sunday morning, when Miss Empress was still absent, the matter was reported to the chief stewardess and the ship searched in vain for any trace of her.

Miss Empress was one of the sensations of vaudeville in the United States almost a decade ago, when she made her first visit to this country.

WARDS 16, 22 and 23
WALSH vs. SWIG

Mr. Swig who announced on September 19th that he would make NO CAMPAIGN FOR ELECTION has inaugurated a mud-slinging campaign through one Bubb, who calls me an opportunist, which means that Mr. Swig is troubled by my ability to interpret popular needs and give them value for value. I suppose he refers to my fight to get a bill in the Senate providing QUARTERS IN THE STATE HOUSE FOR THE AMERICAN LEGION, by 34 to 4 in the House and by 21 to 19 in the Senate, after SWIG HAD BEEN SUCCESSFULLY FILIBUSTERING which I dressed in obedience to the will and informed judgment of the people. At least it must be said that my opportunities has been for the benefit of others.

My opponent endorses to believe up the existing political organization by a subterfuge, which is unworthy of a candidate for Senatorial, as I well know from investigation, are not and were not intended by the authors of the measure to apply to Senatorial districts. Mr. Swig has stated his endorsements under record. YOURS ARE WIDELY PERFUNCTORY.

PARTY ENDORSEMENTS. Against them I place the Republican endorsement of myself as held from me unfailingly for the past four years, but my personal commendations based on their knowledge of my Senate activities. As to the alleged endorsement of Mr. Swig by Governor Coolidge, I am assured that such an endorsement was not given.

If folks are at all impressed by the names trotted out annually in behalf of my opponent, I commend to them the reading of every vote I cast in the Senate, and the bills I introduced in the Senate. Read the Public Record of Paul Fair. I may add that it is said of a former Governor of the Port that he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth.

Mr. Swig refuses to discuss MY RECORD IN THE SENATE. WHY? Mr. Swig refuses to discuss his RECORD IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. WHY? I standing on record as to a man who has been a CHALLENGE AND AN OPEN MIND. I challenge my opponent to a series of debates, a single legislative bill or vote at issue. I FURTHER ACCEPT ANY CHALLENGE from him to discuss MY PUBLIC RECORD. I challenge him to discuss the Elevated bill, by which we were "sold." I DEFY FAKES, and his acknowledged objection to referring that question to the people is a reflection on endorsement by the American Federation of Labor, and his condemnation.

After all, OUR PUBLIC RECORDS are the things to which the people are interested. No longer does the intelligent voter worship the word "Democrat" as a fetish. Republicans are in the majority in the Senate. I ASK FOR MY SENATE RECORD. I AM ENTITLED TO AND EXPECT TO RECEIVE ENDORSEMENT AT THE POLLS BY A MORE VOTES THAN SWIG.

National Legislation of the Meat Packing Industry

1. Will not increase the amount of meat you can buy for a dollar.
2. Will not raise more animals.
3. Will not produce more meat.
4. Will not stop fluctuations in live-stock receipts or prices.
5. Will not increase the output of the packing houses.
6. Will not prevent strikes.
7. Will not reduce transportation charges.
8. Will not reduce the retailer's cost of doing business.
9. Will not increase the demand for the cheaper cuts of meat.
10. Will not lessen the consumers' demand for expensive delivery and credit service.
11. Can not at the same time raise prices paid farmers for live stock, and lower prices paid by consumers for meat.

But the slowing up of efficiency due to cumbersome governmental routine will have the effect of increasing the manufacturing charges between the cost of live stock and the cost of meats, thus forcing lower live-stock prices or higher meat prices.

The packing industry as now conducted, is characterized by keen competition, highest efficiency, and unusually low profits.

"CHALLENGE" A GRIPPING DRAMA

By FRED J. McISAAC.
Dramatic Editor.

Eugene Walter has always packed a punch, as the sporting editor says, and as the telegraph editor now affirms, but in "The Challenge," which opened an engagement at the Park Square Theatre last night, he delivers a body blow against Bolshevism.

"The Challenge" is an extensively interesting play, and it is rich in dramatic moments, teems with thrills, possesses rather more comedy than you expect in such a serious person as Eugene Walter, and dealing with a topic upon which most of us hold decided views it grips from beginning to end. Not quite to the end. There is a settled 1st-Down after the big scene in the third act.

As a working newspaperman I want to hand a bouquet to the author and producer, and whoever else had a hand in the newspaper office scene. Newspaper offices are not interesting to persons outside the profession; they have a frowsy, ill manicured appearance. I remember an Englishman who was led through an editorial room at the height of its activity and who remarked:

"It extraordinary that such atrociously untidy looking persons should be engaged in literary pursuits."

The newspaper office in "The Challenge" is a very accurate and skillfully arranged scene, and the actors who impersonate newspaper men have been finely drilled.

The hero of "The Challenge" is a young newspaper man who had thrown his lot with the proletariat, though he is intimate with a particularly conspicuous capitalist and in love with the sister of that malefactor of great wealth. How he is disillusioned of his theory that capitalism should be overthrown and a rule of workers set up is the story of the play. The big scene occurs at a meeting of the "Reds," a most effectively staged mob scene in which the young enthusiast is repudiated by the people for whom he sacrificed everything.

The accuracy of Walter's arguments for and against Bolshevism is something that I accordingly shall not quote; they make a dark good play.

Holbrook Blinn is the star of "The Challenge," but he appears to play the noble capitalist, and permits Alan Dinehart to walk away with the show as the unashamed thief, a part which Dinehart does with exceptional ease and elegance. Ben Johnson, Leonard Doyle, Charles Sellon and Frank Torpey play types with the success of Louise Closser Hale, who with the heroine, who is a limp female and whose future existence with her reformed husband by no means assured when the curtain descends upon the conventional embrace.

The Selwyns have staged and cast the piece with great care, and the big company deserves a blanket diploma.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Angered at his son, who has lied to save the reputation of his dead mother, who Warren bequeaths his entire million-dollar estate to the charity, Judith Rutledge, in "Her Kingdom of Dreams," starring Anita Stewart, which opened the week at Gordon's Olympia. The vaudeville includes Al Shayne, the singing beauty; Memories," a singing act; Fojetti and Bennett in a dancing skit; O'Rourke and Wallace, "Singers de luxe," and Jolly Johnny Jones in "A Tip on the Wire." A new Lyons-Moran comedy and the Olympia Weekly complete the program.

ARLINGTON THEATRE—"Othello" was given at the Arlington Theatre last night for the final performance of the Shakespearean season. It was well acted by the Cry players, with Mr. Craig in the title role, William Norton as Iago, and Mary Young as Desdemona. Tonight, the Craig Prize Play, "Common Clay," which ran for seventeen weeks at this theatre on the occasion of its first production, will be revived, with Mr. Craig, Miss Barbiroli, Miss Clifford and Miss Young in their original roles.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM — Jack Reid and his Record Breakers burlesque furnished the amusement for the patrons of the Howard. Mr. Reid appeared as "The Information Kid" with all the advance slang and up-to-the-minute chatter. He is supported by a capable cast and chorus. The management also offered an excellent vaudeville show.

Plays That Remain

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Last week of "Monte Cristo, Jr.," spectacular Winter Garden show, with Ralph Herz, Chic Sale, Adelaide and Hughes, the Watson Sisters and other stars.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"Breakfast in Bed," with Florence Moore, daring farce bearing end of long run here. Closes November 15.

WILBUR THEATRE—Third week of William Hodge in his latest comedy, "The Guest of Honor," a tale of New York life.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Last week of "Fair Helen," modernized version of Offenbach's famous opera bouffe, with Marcia Van Dresser.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Low Fields in "A Lonely Romeo," dashing musical farce, in last fortnight here.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Mrs. Fiske in second week of "Mis' Nelly of N'Orleans," comedy of Creole life by Laurence Eyre. Admirably acted.

DANCING ACT HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

Rarely has even B. F. Keith's famous vaudeville house shown a better bill than the one which opened yesterday. There is much variety for everyone, and none of the acts fail to please.

The headline act, "A Smart Revue," features Mabel McCane, who is known wherever vaudeville or musical comedy is known. Her dancing delighted the first night audience, while the feminine contingent raved over the beautiful and startling varieties of gowns shown. The star was not alone in the honors bestowed, she shared by Tom Bryan, Lillian Broderick and William B. Taylor.

Everybody knows James Thornton, so that is was welcoming an old favorite when he stepped out to tell his inimitable stories in his own inimitable manner. He has many new ones but lapses back into some of the old ones that the audience was so anxious to hear.

"The Best House," with Roger Imhof, Hugh L. Cline and Marcelle Cleeton, is a new offering to Boston and one that pleased everybody, while Ben Linn and Mabel Hart, famous illusionists, provided an other always welcome feature.

Lindsay Regal and Slim Moore provided the necessary comedy touch, while Vera Berliner danced and sang their way into instant favor, while Walter Clinton and Julia Rooney in "Vaudeville Reformed" and Joe Lee completed the excellent bill. Pat and Julia Levely provided the sensational closing act.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—How Kards, the madmen of the "movies," give a thrilling game in which they seize young girls and hurl them through the air to be impaled on spiked wheels, which have been in the sand, is shown in "Auction of Souls," the story of which is Mardigalan's amazing escape from ravished Armenia, which was presented yesterday at the Scollay Square house. Miss Mardigasian was the sole survivor of fourteen Armenian girls. A new Lyons-Moran comedy and the Olympia News Weekly complete the picture program. The vaudeville bill includes many novelty acts.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Arthur Pearson brought his "Step Lively Girls" to Waldron's Casino, aided and abetted by one of the strongest casts of principals seen at Waldron's this season. These include "Shorty" McAllister, Harry T. Shannon, Catherine Crawford and little Anna Propp, Jack Mundy, Ed Quigley, Margie Wilson, Margaret Taylor and Lillian Fowler.

The big feature of the entertainment is the realistic act of Catherine Crawford and her fashion girls presented in "The Temple of Love." McAllister's four feet six to Shannon's six feet four, permits of unusual comedy situations.

PARK THEATRE—Popular demand has brought George Loane Tucker's production of George M. Cohan's play of a sublime faith and a sublime love, "The Miracle Man," back to the Park Theatre for a limited run.

Without question "The Miracle Man" is one of the most remarkable picture plays of the year. It is a photoplay which appeals to men, women and children alike, as it proved during its initial run here, when thousands were turned away daily.

DITRICHSTEIN SCORES IN NEW PLAY

Leo Ditrichstein opened an engagement at the Tremont Theatre last evening, playing the title role in "The Marquise de Priola," a three act comedy by Henri Lavedan. The cast, which was of uncommon excellence, included Beatrice Nyman, Orlando Daly, Carle Mitchell, Ann Macdonald, Lyle Cahill and Josephine Hamilton.

Widely heralded as "the most remarkable character study since the days of Richard Mansfield," the play ran a perilous chance of disappointing expectations by reason of such high praise. It just escaped, it is triumph the more complete.

With a pathological subject and distinctly frankly pertinent to the theme, there is plenty to evoke the fierce ire of the Puritan and the scandalization of the squeamish; but here is a play that is a play, its structure the outgrowth of consistent character development.

The Marquis de Priola is a jaded, voluptuous, elderly but well preserved, whose ruling passion, the pursuit of women, has acquired an abnormal bent through over-stimulation. The legitimate zest of wooing, of conquest, of fulfillment, has given place to a fever, an exhausted to give the workout roue anything approaching the old thrill.

He finds this thrill in various means; the attempted seduction of his former wife, now remarried; the fascination of a beautiful young woman by repudiating her at the moment of her surrender; and the siege of a young girl, who, he believes, is destined for the triumph of breaking through the barriers of her hatred and religious scruples.

All these things the Marquis de Priola undertakes, with as much success as he elects to enjoy. Already through satiety of conquest, he tires easily, the game is not worth playing through to the end.

Normal pleasures failing, he has become addicted to the use of drugs. In the meantime, we are introduced to Pierre Morain, a young protege of de Priola, whom he has educated. Pierre adores the Marquis but after returning from his studies, and living under the latter's roof for a week, he becomes sickened at the life he sees. A crisis arrives. Protest from Pierre leads to an outburst of ungovernable passion on the part of Priola, as a result of which he receives a slight stroke of paralysis.

Confronted with a frightful picture of dissolution of mind and body, Pierre learns that he is the natural son of the debauche. The end of the play is more than merely tragic; it is grandiose; it is a coup de maitre of grim irony.

Mr. Ditrichstein's performance was magnificent. He is far more than an accomplished stage lover; he is an actor of compelling power in moments of dramatic climax. In that first outburst of rage he held the audience in the hollow of his hand. The final catastrophe, gruesome and realistic, was never exaggerated. A less capable actor and company would ruin the play; the art of Mr. Ditrichstein and his associates gives it reality and force.

Miss MacDonald and Miss Cahill were charming as well as competent in their roles; Mr. Daly is a delightful comedian; Mr. Tynan was dignified in a difficult part. Orlando Daly will be worth seeing, both as a remarkable piece of characterization and as a drama of engrossing interest.

GAYETY—"Hello, America," Joe Hurtig's patriotic musical revue, kept a large audience amused at the Gayety Theatre. Singing, dancing and dialogue have their places in this new "burlesque."

Lewis and Dody are the stars and fun producers of the company. Included in the cast is Margaret White, who for many seasons has been a favorite of burlesque patrons. Costumes and scenery play an important part in the success of the offering, and there is an attractive chorus.

BOSTON THEATRE — William Farnum in Zane Grey's Western romance, "The Last of the Duanes," a picture of border life, is the film feature at the Boston. Theatre this week. The picture abounds in fine scenery and lively action. A Mack Sennett comedy film, called "Salome vs Shenandoah," and a vaudeville bill are also offered.

MODERN AND BEACON—A triple bill of all-round excellence is being shown at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week. For the lovers of powerful drama there is Dorothy Dalton in her latest release, "L'Apache," a story of the Parisian underworld, in which Miss Dalton plays a dual role. Charles Ray in "Crooked Straight" will appeal to those who like to see a country boy story with plenty of love interest. Finally, there is "Salome vs Shenandoah," the latest Mack Sennett comedy.

WALDORF THEATRE — Tommy Levene and the "On U Baby" company are the attraction at the Waldorf Theatre this week, where an enthusiastic audience greeted "The Maid of Mexico." Mr. Levene is assisted by a talented group of players including Madeline Buckley, Flora Murray, George Brown, Muriel Moore and Al Casey Fox.

'SCANDALS' A PLEASING REVUE

Every once in a while Boston theatre patrons make the return of a favorite the occasion for a reception, and so they welcomed Julia Sanderson when she returned to the cast of "The Passing Show of 1919," which opened to a full house at the Tremont Theatre last night.

Miss Sanderson, one Boston had the opportunity of witnessing the return at three stars in one show, "The Scandals of 1919" brought back not only Miss Pennington, but George White and Lou Holtz as well.

The play has very appropriately been called a "modern musical revue." The absence of any kind of a plot is not missed, but rather is permitted mind that with Miss Pennington contributing a number of her select dancing specialties, and George White demonstrating that he still possesses a voice and the ability to use his feet exceptionally well, and Lou Holtz breaking in every now and then with a comical song.

The revue opened with a scene of the "playground of the immortals on the planet Mars." One of the immortals had invented a telescope through which he could see clearly all that was going on on Earth. He makes his invention known to the rest of the immortals, and the scandals they see through the telescope follow in rapid succession.

If course there is a bedroom scene. George White in rather melodramatically murdered by his wife following a quarrel over who should "put out the cat." There follows a rather humorous court scene at which Adele Astaley is acquitted of the murder of her husband, after the judge had imbibed in a few pre-July drinks and impressed upon the mixed jury that the murder was done in the cause of justice. All ends as happily as can be expected with George White coming to life in the last act.

Summing up, the staging of the acts under the direction of Mr. White is very cleverly done.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—At Lowe's Orpheum Theatre the program opening the week, which will be repeated today and tomorrow, offers plenty of variety. The vaudeville bill is topped by two clever performers, Gillen and Mulcahy in the latter's new presentation entitled "Songland." Pearl Abbott and company also won much applause in an outburst of ungovernable passion on the bill included The Corsars, acrobatic and animal offering; Francis Renn, fashion plate of vaudeville; Johnson brothers and Johnson, two monologs; minstrelsy and Harrison and Halloway in a merry melange of music. The feature photoplay offered for the first time in this city Florence Reed in her newest production, "Her Game." There was also shown the latest Mack Sennett comedy. A complete change of bill will be given Thursday.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND—"The Unpardonable Sin," at the Upham's Corner Strand, sweet and big audiences off their feet. It was followed by Carter de Haven in "Close to Nature," the Strand News Weekly and a clever comedy. Mabel Normand heads the program for Thursday, Friday and Saturday in her latest picture, "The Jinx."

FENWAY THEATRE—"The Life of Jane," melodrama of the era, and Nazimova in "The Brat," are the big features at the Fenway Theatre opening this week. Thursday a new bill will be presented, "The Lottery Man" with Wallace Reid, and "The 13th Chair."

MALDEN AUDITORIUM—Two large and enthusiastic audiences greeted an excellent revival of "Over Night," Philip H. Bartholome's screaming farce, presented by the Temple Stock Company at the Malden Auditorium. The piece has lost none of its former popularity, and is staged in careful fashion.

Coming Events

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—The welcome which will be extended to E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe on the opening night at the Boston Opera House next Monday may be guessed at from the $5,000 advance sale of tickets. Their repertoire for the two weeks' engagement is as follows: First week—Monday, Tuesday matinee and night, Wednesday night, "The Taming of the Shrew"; Thursday, Friday, Saturday matinee and night, "Twelfth Night."

Second week—Monday and Tuesday nights and Saturday matinee, "Hamlet"; Wednesday and Saturday nights, "The Taming of the Shrew"; Thursday and Friday nights, "Twelfth Night."

MAJESTIC THEATRE—New York's hit of the season, "The Shubert Galeties of 1919," will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre next week, beginning Monday evening. The cast includes Gilda Gray and her six syncopaters, Margaret Farrell, Stewart Baird, George Jessell, Ina Williams, Clayton and White, Dalla Darnell, Frank Davis, Fred A. Leonard, Ted Lorraine, Gladys Walton, Klein Brothers, The Glorias, Billie Williams, Florence Elmore and Mabel Cloud.

SYMPHONY HALL—"The Confession," by Hal Reid, featuring Henry Wathall, who first attained fame as "The Little Colonel" in "The Clansman," D. W. Griffith's photoplay, will be presented at Symphony Hall for seven days, beginning next Monday evening. "The Confession" made a wonderful record as a stage play and $100,000 has been expended by the National Film Corporation in the making of the picture.

ARLINGTON THEATRE—The Boston English Opera Company, under the direction of Edward M. Beck, will begin a Winter season of twelve weeks at the Arlington Theatre a week from next Monday. The repertory will include all the old favorites of the standard grand opera, and Gounod's "Faust" will be the opening bill, and there will be a change of opera each successive Monday.

JOLSON IN "SINBAD"—When Al Jolson was informed in Philadelphia, last week, that he was to return with "Sinbad" as the attraction at the Boston Opera House, football week, November 17, and Thanksgiving week, he immediately wired for the reservation of a box for the football game Saturday afternoon, November 22.

CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE—Herbert Lyteil, in "Lombardi, Ltd.," is the feature film at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre. In addition there were five vaudeville acts. There will be an entire change of program Thursday.

'OUR MARY' IN ROLE OF HOODLUM

Once there was a millionaire who could buy everything in the world he wanted for himself and those he loved. This millionaire had a grandchild. Brought up in an atmosphere of luxury, this pampered little girl could scarcely conceive of a life not surrounded with every charm and comfort that go to make life worth living.

It happened, however, that she had a father who was the traditional literary man of drama; a dreamer and visionary. Wrapped up in his work, while he does "non amore," he is poor in the world's goods that his younger daughter can have for the asking, for the public fails to appreciate the talent, perhaps misdirected, of the writer.

His home is in marked contrast to that in which his daughter lives. The contrast is brought home to the girl. She follows her father to the slums, taking up her abode in surroundings that are entirely strange to her. Being an adaptable, clever and winsome lass, she makes herself at home, and soon becomes closely involved in the life about her.

Who the girl is to play this part in a manner to get every last bit of "cream" out of the situation? Who but "Our Mary"? In "The Hoodlum," in which Mary Pickford opened an engagement at Tremont Temple, she has one of the best pictures of her career.

How the petted child of wealth took a hand in the destinies of those who lived in a humbler environment and in her small way played the role of Fate to more than one friend of the slum district, make an absorbing story.

The picture is the second from Mary's own studio personally offered by Nathan H. Gordon. The film is even more elaborate than "Daddy Long Legs," and is admirably acted and mounted.

GLOBE THEATRE—Two interesting photoplays are the features for the first three days of this week at Lowe's Globe Theatre, both possessed of strong, human appeal. They are "Poor Relations," with a notable cast, and "The Afford Mistake," in which Edith Sterling is featured.

COLUMBIA THEATRE — Photoplays of unusual merit were shown before appreciative audiences at Loew's Columbia Theatre, where the policy of daily changes is still continued. The attractions for today will be Hale Hamilton in "Four Flusher" and the all-star cast production of "Better Times." For tomorrow and Thursday there will be screened the spectacular photoplay, "The Thunderbolt," and Wallace Reid in "Valley of the Giants."

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—Plenty of picture comedy was introduced by Charles Ray at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in the Paramount-Artcraft picture entitled, "The Egg Crate Wallop." Another picture showed Robert Warwick in "Told in the Hills," a pioneer story of the Far West. The vaudeville included Martini and Frabina, Selbini and Grovini, Pease and Dereon, Anita, violinist; Tate and Tate.

LANCASTER THEATRE—At the Lancaster a double program of excellent pictures was seen by large audiences. Dorothy Dalton in "The Market of Souls," and Vivian Martin in "The Third Kiss" were the feature pictures.

SAILORS ENTERTAINED BY SOMERVILLE WOMAN

Headed by the ship's band, fifty sailors from the U. S. S. Savannah marched from Charlestown Navy Yard to the home of Mrs. John Magorio, No. 12 Cutter street, Somerville, where Mrs. Magorio was their hostess at a reunion. There were about sixty guests besides the sailors.

The house was brilliantly decorated. Speeches were made by Gunner Timothy O'Brien and G. Casey Iliff, who headed the sailors on their march.

CITY HOSPITAL NURSE IS SEEKING DIVORCE

Mrs. Freda I. Kelley, a nurse in the City Hospital, today sought a divorce from Francis J. Kelley, charging cruel and abusive treatment. They were married on October 30, 1918, in the Grafton State Hospital, where both were employed. The wife's story was supported by a Dorchester physician. She was accompanied to court by her mother, Mrs. Nellie Tabor. Her husband, according to Mrs. Kelley, has abandoned her, and she does not know where he is.

WIFE HIS NIECE, HUSBAND ASKS ANNULMENT

Claiming that he is married to his niece and has discovered their relationship since the wedding, Aaron Goldberg appeared before Judge Hammond in the divorce session of the Suffolk County Superior Court today and asked that the marriage be annulled. The wife, although convinced of their blood ties, is loath to give up her uncle husband. They have one child.

Goldberg said he first learned that he had married his sister's daughter about eight months ago, and immediately stopped living with her. She went to Worcester with her child, to live with relatives. When the notice of her husband's application for annulment was served on her in that city, according to the relatives, she tore up the official paper and trampled it.

The couple were married in Worcester on March 29, 1917. Later they came to Boston to live. Goldberg is twenty-three and his wife one year older.

WOULD BAR ALL HORSES TO END CONGESTION

Interesting Solutions of Boston's Traffic Problem Are Suggested by Readers

Interest in the American's traffic columns is increasing and letters continue to pour in on the Traffic Editor. From every corner of Massachusetts and even a few neighboring states are coming solutions. It is a complex problem, and here are a few of the solutions offered:

WANTS HORSES BARRED.

Traffic Editor:

Dear Sir—I noticed an item in the Boston American asking for suggestions of how to relieve the congested districts in the city of Boston, and I would suggest that there be an ordinance prohibiting horse-drawn vehicles from using the principal thoroughfares in the shopping districts, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., as I believe from personal observation that one team will blockade the traffic more than fifty automobiles or trucks.

The above suggestion will probably seem hard, but there are many cases in this State where automobiles and trucks are prohibited from using certain thoroughfares that horse drawn vehicles are allowed upon, and if this is so, would it be any worse to prohibit horses from streets used by automobiles and trucks if the same would benefit the majority of the people?

I would also suggest that all unnecessary vehicles, such as advertising vehicles, which are so commonly seen on our streets, be prohibited from the above mentioned districts during the congested hours.

Regarding taking a slice of Boston Common to help the Tremont street traffic, I believe it a good idea, as common sense tells us that more space always means less congestion. A vote from the people will answer this question.

Regarding such ideas as double-decking sidewalks or streets, I believe that would be very unfair and unjust to storekeepers in other parts of Boston who do not happen to be located on these double-deck streets.

It would tend to materially decrease real estate values on streets outside of the double-deck area, tend to bring more people to these already congested districts, and, worst of all, give to the storekeepers on these streets a greater advantage than they already have over the storekeepers on the other streets.

Why not spread out and give the merchants beyond this congested section of Boston a fair chance, instead of trying to crowd so much into a small area?

As for our present traffic officers, I personally think they are doing nobly, and are most certainly commanding the respect of everyone.

EARL W. PRATT.

Boston.

WOULD USE COMMON

Traffic Editor, Boston American:

In order to improve traffic conditions, my idea is that the Common might be used to great advantage. Our honorable Mayor opened that suggestion, which is an excellent one. Why not use the entire Common as the only parking place for shoppers' automobiles and carriages? Rope off or do away with the entrance to the subway on the Common. Let those who daily rest on the Common use the Public Garden for resting purposes.

Such teams as are used for trucking or delivery houses should be the only ones allowed to park on business streets. People who can afford to ride to the city in automobiles in order to shop, should be willing to exert themselves to walk from the Common to the stores. Have one side of Common for "entrance" and the other side for "exit."

Select the most capable of the present managing service men who care to remain, give them good salaries and police authority to take care of the automobiles only. Use the policemen for conducting people on foot. Have distinctive uniform for automobile conductors. Open traffic training schools for young men or boys. Use arrows to indicate direction.

FUNERAL AUTOS MUST PAY REVENUE TAX

Automobile owners who convey pallbearers and others to funerals will have to pay a revenue tax on passenger automobiles rented for the occasion, according to a ruling of the U. S. Treasury Department. In order to collect this tax, effective since January 1, the Internal Revenue Department is sending lists to the furniture undertakers throughout the state, requesting the names and addresses of persons from whom they have rented automobiles for funeral purposes.

U. S. ARMY NOW TEN PER CENT. BELOW NORMAL

Washington, Oct. 28.—The United States army is 10 per cent below the strength permitted by law, according to an announcement from the War Department.

The estimated strength of the army on October 31 was 519,567. There were 24,416 on the forces in Europe and 9,216 en route to or from Europe. The army permitted by law provides for a standing army of 587,000 during the present fiscal year.

BROCKTON DIVORCE LIST IS LONGEST ON RECORD

Brockton, Oct. 28.—The longest divorce list on the history of the Superior court, at this session, is stated for the two weeks which opens in this city, November 10. Sixty-nine suits have been entered for trial, and in addition there are thirteen equity cases, thirty-one court cases and the cases for the jury, all to be heard during the seven weeks' session. Judge Sanderson of Taunton is being used to clear the suits arising out of automobile accidents, of which one was killed and several other persons injured.

Well Managed Homes Choose It

Women who take pride in well managed homes won't tolerate an electric iron that constantly gets out of order.

They know the trouble it costs. Ironings delayed, clothes not ready when expected, the whole household routine disturbed.

That is why good housekeepers cheerfully pay a little more for the proved reliability of the American Beauty. The little extra it costs is repaid many times in better work and freedom from annoyance.

In the homes whose management you admire, you will surely find the American Beauty. More than 3,000,000 users have proved it "the best iron made."

It is shaped for fast ironing. Note the nose. It does quickly the tucks and ruffles so difficult for the ordinary shaped iron. The flexible cord is protected for hard service. Weight and balance are just right. The smooth mirrored surface glides effortless. You finish cool and fresh.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

WHY NUXATED IRON SO QUICKLY BUILDS UP WEAK, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN FOLKS—Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It In This Country Alone to Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood become starved for want of iron from that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, quick to get tired, fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force that stamps and stamps all with mastery and success. Without iron in the blood there is no necessity to succeed, no ambition to battle with the walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is nervous, irritable, fretful, and who has developed the great necessity of practicing the making blood examination of their weak, anaemic, run-down pale faces, and who at forty persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a slightly nervous condition due to lack of iron in the blood, when red blood corpuscles without even realizing the real and true cause. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body unassimilated, and you are fed still with rollers as wide apart that the food can't get through.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at forty, dull of intellect, memory poor, nerves raw, irritable and all run-down, while at 60 you may still be young in feeling, full of life, and you may still be young in feeling, full of life, energy and vigor.

"Iron proof of this take the case of Former United States Senator and Vice Presidential candidate Charles W. Fairbanks, who at 70 is still a veritable dynamo of tireless energy. Senator Fairbanks has been a firm believer in Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and blood builder, and he has proved his belief by what he has done and is doing himself. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others to the wonderful and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I am sure that thousands of people will be glad to learn how feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of health.

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, nerve, forceful men and wealthy, rosy cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron. Nuxated Iron therefore, they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system the moment they enter the stomach and have been said and written on this subject by many well informed physicians and scientists, and I am sure that thousands of people will be interested in doing themselves will notice iron results simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents to buy a dollar bottle of Nuxated Iron, which is now obtainable at most all druggists, and try it. Unless you are satisfied that it is the best investment you ever made, return the empty bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers have such confidence in Nuxated Iron that they will refund the money to any purchaser if they will return the empty bottle to them even though the purchaser may have taken but one dose. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

DARTMOUTH-COLGATE GAME DENIED TO BOSTON

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Just as Boston moulds were moistening in anticipation of a most satisfying football feast in the sought-for shifting to Boston of the Dartmouth-Colgate game, there came the following crisp statement from Horace G. Pender:

"No chance for transferring Colgate game."

Now if Horace Pender were anxious that Horace Pender, Boston, hear, which reaches its most acute stage in the hearts of Boston Dartmouth men would still persist. But Horace G. happens to be Dartmouth's graduate manager of athletics and what he says usually goes. It must take time and work to transfer the location of Boston being the scene of what promises to prove one of the most interesting games in the fifty-year history of football.

No information as to the reason for Dartmouth's decision was advanced by the graduate manager, but only the wildest guesses would take one far from the thought that Boston, in the football world, is considered Harvard-dominated, and the big crowds from sources would venture here, when such venturing would mean a considerable reduction in the sale at Stadium tickets.

So it's "Hi, for Hanover, on Saturday."

MANY ASKED SHIFT.

Just how many telegrams, telephone calls and letters were sent to Dartmouth asking that the Colgate game be moved from Hanover to Boston, nobody knows, demanding or requesting that the scene of the game be made the Harvard stadium is difficult to estimate. From conversation with several Dartmouth graduates it was evident that the desire to make the coming great contest in Fenway Park or Braves Field one of the greatest and consequently one of the disappointment.

But with that little matter the chest-of-H air, which is more or less traditional of Dartmouth, has settled down to the frantic scurrying about for automobiles and a fresh spanning of railroad time tables, and on Saturday afternoon, the mighty teams of Dartmouth and Colgan will battle, with the record crowd in Hanover's history, to cram the seats and standing areas of the Dartmouth Athletic field.

COLGATE'S BEST EVER.

Never has Colgate boasted a team equal to the one Laurie Bankhart has been grooming and leading successfully against some of the best eleven of the East. With more than half the team made up of veterans from the unbeaten, untied eleven, two of whom were unanimously chosen for the All-America eleven, Bankhart, Bankhart has developed the lineup with 1916 substitutes and some most promising new material, and today possesses a football machine which is at once sturdy and brilliant, and one which has proved itself equally effective either in tackling or meeting an attack.

As for Dartmouth's eleven, recent years have failed to discover equal at Hanover. The Colgate, its schedule is a difficult one, but unlike Colgate, it has had one set-back ever since beginning the tougher portion of that schedule. Starting with Penn State two weeks ago, it followed with Cornell, and goes from this week's Colgate game to meet another yet-unconquered team in Pennsylvania, and concludes its season with Brown, the American Thanksgiving day game drawn a distance in Rochester before its final game with Syracuse.

TWO DARTMOUTH COACHES.

A singular characteristic having to do with the approaching game comes in the fact that both teams are coached by former Dartmouth football stars. Bankhart, who is handling Colgate, was a quarterback Dartmouth's "Big Green" team handling on the team which defeated Harvard 22 to 0, while Jesse Hawley, Dartmouth represented Dartmouth in 1913-14-15, having been one of the greatest of her ends. Hawley, after graduating, coached Dartmouth's forward wall for two seasons, and in 1918 was succeeded by Bankhart. Hawley, after graduating, coached Dartmouth's forward wall for two seasons, and in 1918 was succeeded by Bankhart. Hawley, after graduating, coached Dartmouth's forward wall for two seasons, and in 1918 was succeeded by Bankhart.

One development of the forward pass which Dartmouth is not known to possess, is reported to have been used by the Colgate team. In adopting it Bankhart must have lifted a leaf from Glen Warner's notebook, for it was the Carlisle Indian who first developed the play. As the play is new to Eastern football and because it may take a prominent part in the coming contest, a brief description of it will be of interest to the attention of the readers of this column.

PASS BEHIND LINE.

It is known as "the forward pass behind the line of scrimmage," and in the game the play is outlined. In working it, the back who takes the pass formation, either before the play starts or immediately after the centre snaps the ball, turns quickly the enemy opens up his line to oppose the usual type of forward pass. Just as it does so a man at end, or back, or tackle leaves his position on the scrimmage line, goes laterally behind his own line, and at the proper time, the throwing back shoots a short forward pass to him, whereupon the receiver turns and dashes through the wide-open line of the opposition.

There were many protests and much discussion of this play when Glen Warner first developed it, many figuring that the pass must necessarily travel over the line of scrimmage, but the rule book disclosed there was nothing to do but accept the play as legal. Much of the success of Warner's Pittsburgh teams has depended on the effective employment of this pass, and if Colgate uses it, it will be interesting to see if Dartmouth has developed a defence for it.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET GOLF RATING

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

If you joined in a number of open golf tournaments conducted by the Massachusetts Golf Association this year and did not get the best in assistance to warrant the handicap from which you played, now is the time to rate it over with your club handicapper and have things fixed up for another season.

If you entered one of the open tournaments and found that your name was not included on the list of players handicapped in the State association, now is the time to get your club handicapper to see that your name is in the 1920 book.

Don Herman, State handicapper, reports that four clubs have already been in 1920 handicap lists, from which he will decide on proper State ratings. He says that he received no complaints this season concerning handicaps, but that a number of players who held membership in a club of the state association were not given handicap ratings because club officials neglected to put their names on lists submitted to him. The unfortunates were obliged to play from scratch in open meetings.

The clubs which have sent in lists are Brae Burn, Winchester, Tedesco and Dedham. Lowell's changes from this year are noted on these club lists, although the increase in the amount of playing has resulted in a higher standard of play this season, which Mr. Herman believes will be reflected in the 1920 State ratings before all of the more than seventy clubs have reported.

There is likely to be little change in the low handicap men, especially in those rated at four strokes and better. Francis Ouimet will hold his place at plus two, without doubt, with Jesse Guilford in second position, at scratch. There may be some jockeying of position among the other low men, and Fred Wright, Jr., of Albemarle, should be placed right next to Ouimet and Guilford.

BROWN STARTS WORK FOR SYRACUSE GAME

Providence, Oct. 28.—Brown has started preparations for the game with Syracuse, Saturday, the biggest game, by far, on the home schedule. Light limbering up work, running down under punts and signal practice completed the schedule.

Practically all the cripples will be back in fighting trim for Syracuse. Fox, who was given a rest during the entire week, will be in at quarter. Albright, star end, Armstrong, Jenall and Emery, backs, also will be back in the lineup.

During the past week Coaches Robinson and Whittemore spent much time in training the linemen and the time spent has resulted in the improvement in both defence and offence is noticeable.

Every effort this week will be made to improve the scoring power of the Brown eleven, which has the material now at hand the coaches believe that Saturday will find the team stronger than at any time this season.

Gym Team for Tech.

The Athletic Association of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has voted to recognize officially the gym team now in process of formation at Tech.

Golf Notes

"He looks something like a young edition of ex-President Taft," is the manner in which Bernard Darwin describes Jerome Travers, the national amateur golf champion, in an article in the London Outing entitled, "Heroes—heaviest champion."

A golfer of the Brightwood Golf and Country Club, Springfield, Mass., found a ball shot through a club house window at the fifth green and on the ball was found a note. The note stated the furniture bills of another golfer, who had broken a window in the club house, and had played a perfect shot to the green. The Canadian golfer tells the story.

Ralph D. Rowe won the Metacomet golf club championship for the season. Harry Ainsworth led five up at one time in the semi-final match and Rowe had to play the best eighteen holes. Rowe went fast in the afternoon and won with a long putt on the thirty-fifth green.

English papers report that forty-six started in the British championship at Deal, which was played October 16 and 17 at Muirfield, Walter Hagen, the American star, was in this at North Berwick and was won by R. H. Wethered, a British golfer. Hagen is the most left handed golfers, was tilted in the semi-finals by Wethered, who played his best form against Hagen and Jones's best was equaled by Wethered and Cyril Tolley of Oxford.

Allan F. Poinsette, the best public links golfer in Washington, D. C., has found yet another amateur golf star. Pat Doyle of Dal Vista, Va., defeated Poinsette by 2 up on the Forest Park public links, Brooklyn, sunday. The Washington golfer was beaten seven holes, where Doyle scored a birdie three. Poinsette had the best card, a 74, with Doyle and Lord at 76 and Fetheringham at 78.

Hope of a match this year between Boston and New York newspaper men was dispelled today when Allen Poinsette, champion of the New York newspaper men's club, and of the New York public links, sent word that the New Yorkers considered it too late in the season to arrange a match. They are keen for one for next year, according to Manitou.

The minor injuries to Alford and Hall, Clark and Hall, the extent of casualties from the game against Bucknell on Saturday.

They are expected to play against West Virginia Wesleyan next Saturday, as will Captain Evans, right end, who has been nursing a sprained ankle.

HARVARD WORKS ON PLAYS FOR PRINCETON

Harvard is to try out formations for the Princeton game this week, and the work today was devoted to the new plays, and no special preparation is being made for Saturday's game with Springfield.

Armand Hersereth is to be given a thorough tryout at centre, where he has replaced Charley Havemeyer. The backs' fullback has been transferred to the pivotal point because of his strength on the defense. He is expected to play a good roving game.

Eddie Casey and Ralph Horween are in football togs again. The former is holding down fullback for the varsity eleven, but it not attempting any hard work just yet, as his injured leg is still sore. Coach Fisk's probably plans on holding out his running star until the Princeton game, although he may be ready for some real stiff Saturday.

RALPH HORWEEN PUNTING.

Ralph Harween is doing a little punting, and nothing else. He is keeping fit for the game Saturday that he will be ready for regular play in ten days.

Desmond is back at left end and Kane at tackle, and are promising to hold on. Joe Ryan is playing just now on Team B, but will be back to come back. Kane looks like a starter against both Princeton and Yale, although he has been most unlucky in the way of injury.

The varsity line up in its new order is: Desmond, le.; Sedgwick, lt.; Clark, lg.; A. Horween, c.; Woods, rg.; Kane, rt.; Hall, re.; Murray, qb.; Humphrey, (Ash.); Hamilton, (Ash.); Casey, fb.

STARS BACK SOON.

Ben Lockwood and Phil Philbin, who were injured Saturday, will be ready for work tomorrow. Morris Phinney will probably report later in the week.

The Princeton formations have been largely perfected, it is said by scouts, who reported today for the first time since Saturday. Tiles are expected to be strong guns, and are likely to be more open than those used heretofore on the Stadium.

The coach will be putting busy for Thursday evening, when the first team meeting the Tufts eleven will be held. Captain Emmons of the baseball nine will lead the cheering, and Freddy Bullard, also a baseball star, will act as chorister. The meeting will be held in the Union.

CARLYLE VS. FITTON ON ARMISTICE DAY

Accepting the challenge issued only last Sunday by the Carlyle A. C., the Fittons of East Boston have made possible the first professional football game that Boston has staged for many years. The Fitton management has sent word to the Carlyle directors that the East Boston athletes would line up against the West End aggregation at Fenway Park on the afternoon of Armistice Day, and as these two aggregations are old basketball rivals, some hard battling seems assured.

Both elevens are composed of graduates of Boston school elevens, with a sprinkling of former college stars. The difficult line-up will be announced later and one or two former Harvard players will be seen to follow the pigskin at the Red Sox ball yard.

HOLY CROSS SHOWING PLEASES CLEO O'DONNELL

Coach Cleo O'Donnell of the Holy Cross football team, who paid a flying trip to Boston, said he is much pleased with the showing the Holy Cross eleven has come along this Fall and believes that the leader of each Worcester college will hold its own with the best in New England.

Thus far Holy Cross has beaten Bowdoin, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College and Connecticut Agricultural College. Its only upset was handed out by the Army. Its big game will

CARLSON GIVES VALGER HARD RING BATTLE

Bridgeport, Oct. 28.—Harry Carlson of Brockton and Benny Valger, New York, 126-pound boxer, boxed eight spirited rounds here. Carlson was the aggressor in most of the rounds. Valger's skill enabled him to shade his opponent.

ELI SQUAD PUT THROUGH HARD SCRIMMAGE

Makeup of Varsity Still Very Uncertain; Kempton May Go to Halfback

New Haven, Oct. 28.—Head Coach Sharpe of Yale ordered scrimmage for the varsity today but he decided not to order the hospital graduates into the lineup. The hospital evacuees which now list taken place in the men general on record including Captain Ellis, centre; Penney, guard; Schlaerreth, tackle; Graham, end; Lee and Joe Neville, halfbacks, and Wells, fullback. Braden and Murphy are left sidelined by injury.

The program for the present week calls for the varsity to practice daily with probably one day devoted to fifteen minute playing periods to test the team endurance. For this reason the coaches are depressed by the warm weather which will not permit of protracted work without loss of weight.

With the Brown game, Yale's opening match against a big rival will be handled for the next week Saturday, only three positions on the team are settled, Captain Callahan will run his plays from centre rush, Herbert Kempton is slated for the quarterback role and Carter Galt, Saturday of the ninth line, will be at guard. The injuries of Captain Callahan make his presence uncertain. Kempton may possibly be needed more at halfback than at quarter, and Galt changed from the left to the right wing at guard twice a week.

No Yale team on record has been so unsettled in membership as late in the season and constant injuries and the rapid development of third or fourth string candidates have made daily changes necessary and the same eleven has not lined up on any two days for practice or scheduled matches this season. The constant shifts have held back the development of team play. The team knows no football because it has not been compelled to display any, but the next two weeks will witness the acquisition of more complicated formations and of a big game line-up.

Fullback Emery of Exeter Out of N. H. '23 Game

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 28.—Fullback Emery of the Exeter team, who was injured in the game with the Harvard Freshmen, will not play in tomorrow's game with the New Hampshire State freshmen. The halfback positions are to be filled by Captain Lyman and Clinton.

KILONIS SEEKS CHAMPIONSHIP HONORS

Feels Sure He Can Defeat Ira Dern for Title in Finish Bout

After taking Ira Dern's $50 last Thursday night at the "Grand," John Kilonis expressed the opinion that he could take Dern's middleweight title as well as the money he had picked off the stage if Dern would agree to meet him in a finish match.

Chagrined at his failure to put Kilonis on his back in the specified fifteen minutes and also peeved because Kilonis separated him from his money, the middleweight champion accepted the challenge of Kilonis, and the pair will meet Thursday night.

There is an argument as to the method that will let no settled until Thursday before they move on the mat for the supreme tussle. The friends of Kilonis have advised him to profit by his experience with Ketchen at the Grand a few weeks ago, and there is a possibility that he will insist that the toe-hold be eliminated.

That, however, is a matter for the champion to decide. He has the say, but it is understood he is not averse to waiving his prerogative in that respect, and will go on one of his favorite holds. In the event of this being done the patrons of wrestling at the Grand" are assured of a spirited session.

New York, Oct. 28.—K. O. Bill Brennan, Johnny Saxon, a heavyweight of Newark, are booked for eight rounds at the Bayonne A. A. tonight.

American Boxers to Sail Thursday for Scandinavia

New York, Oct. 28.—The three American boxers who will represent this country in amateur tournaments in Norway, Denmark and Sweden, are to sail Thursday morning. They were to have sailed yesterday morning, but the longshoremen's strike caused another postponement.

The boxers making the trip are Frank Cassidy, 135-pound class; John Burke, light heavyweight, and Aston Donzo, 115-pound class.

EIGHT REGULARS OUT OF TUFTS PRACTICE

Work Begun on Oval for Game With Army Next Saturday

Minus the services of eight varsity regulars, Coach Whelan of Tufts began preparation for the game with West Point, Glancing over the names, the coach can check up as absent, Tubber White, Ray Trowbridge, Sal Cahoon, Paul Pryor, Blado Faiolli, Dutch Frasier, Bill Mitchell, Chet Sanford and Tom McNamara.

Four of these were unable to line up against Yale and the other four who did play in the never-to-be-forgotten scramble should never have been allowed to start. With the Yale game past history, Tufts hospital list carries the name eight names plus Keefe and Smith, the quarterbacks.

PARKER TAKES ON TIPLITZ AT TRIPLE A

By JACK CONWAY.

Charley Parker, South End lightweight, will give Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia the acid test in their twelve-round bout at Mechanics Building tonight under the direction of the Armory A A

Tiplitz has proved a bright star in boxing in Philadelphia. His aggressive style of milling, plus a stinging punch have enabled him to dispose of most of his opponents without much effort.

Tiplitz is only nineteen years old and looks as though he has a bright boxing future. In his only Boston start Tiplitz was shaded by Johnny Dundee after a torrid twelve-round engagement

At Lawrence Saturday Tiplitz looked like anything but a blue-ribbon stepper against Joey Fox This, however, was not Tiplitz's fault. Fox refused to do any real fighting and was apparently in the ring merely to go the distance.

Against Parker the Philadelphia youth will receive plenty of opportunities to fight. The South End boy is a free-hitting, open fighter, who likes to get at close quarters where he has an opportunity to score with a kayo blow.

Parker has profited much by his experiences during the past year. He is boxing faster and better than ever and has plenty of backers who are confident he'll finish in front this time.

Joe Gibbs of this city will oppose Tony Viera of New Bedford in the semi-final of eight rounds. Harry Nelson of the North End will clash with Tom Nee of South Boston in a six-round whirl, while Harry Lorino of Charlestown and Red Doherty of South Boston will go over the jumps in a six-round event.

Harry Carlson, Brockton lightweight, will journey to Clinton tonight where he will oppose Charley Sheppard of this city in a twelve-round contest. Since returning from overseas, Sheppard has been traveling at a lively pace. He proved he is a mighty dangerous youth, when he stopped Joe Curry at the Commercial Club.

Brockton Harry will have to show all of his ability if he is to finish in front.

Al Nelson of Manchester, N. H. will meet Paddy Flynn of Everett in a twelve-round bout at Portsmouth N. H. tomorrow night. There is considerable feeling between the two men, and as a result there will not be much chance of "pulled punches." Nelson is under the management of Alex McLean, who intends to try to land his protege a match with Young Kloby provided Flynn is sent down in the waves of defeat tomorrow evening.

Abe Friedman expects to start his New England campaign with a victory when he meets Gardner Brooks of Lowell in a twelve-round tussle at Lynn Thursday night. Eddie Mack, Friedman's manager, and Paddy Monahan, Brooks' representative, have been unable to come to terms on the referee question. Mack insists on a local man being referee while Monahan desires Matt Hinkle of Cleveland as the third man in the ring.

Spider Murphy, who won Webster's old title shortly after he started managing boxers, came to bat today with a peppery statement in which he challenged Johnny Wilson of Charlestown in behalf of Joe Eagan, Dorchester middleweight. Spider points to the fact Eagan received a referee's decision over Mike O'Dowd before that worthy won the middleweight championship.

"If Wilson can't beat Eagan, there is no sense in his trying to get a tussle with O'Dowd," declared Murphy.

Of late Eagan has been boxing as he can when right. All of which has not helped the batting averages of his opponents.

George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight, is also eager to meet either O'Dowd, Donald de[illegible] record of wins [illegible]

Personal Liberty.

THERE are squillions of big subjects in the public optic. Rent, coal, the League of Nations, rent coal prohibition, rent, sugar, strikes and rent, in the disorder named.

ANYBODY wanting some size six information on the subject can consult Congress or the Child's Book of Knowledge.

SUGAR is scarcer than welcomes for the Kaiser, who claims he has no place to hang his hat. France will give the old boy a place to hang his helmet, provided he keeps it on while it's hanging. Coal miners are going to pull another strike. Landlords are jacking up the rent again while they change another tire on their bankrolls. The League of Nations is going to adopt the United States, which is the first time that an orphan ever did the adopting. Thanksgiving is almost here, but nobody knows why. It will be dangerous to approach your stocking this Xmas, as Santy may load it with a lead pipe and make it unanimous.

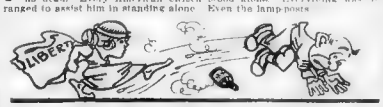
Milkman Gets the Weather Breaks.

MILK is twenty cents a quart, rain or shine. Meat is three dollars a pound, with the butcher doing the weighing. By kicking into a pool four families can buy one egg at club rates. Bread is the same old price and you save the cost of a knife. A loaf is just one slice. The loaf is getting smaller and smaller. The only way you can tell a loaf of bread from a biscuit is by the raisin.

THERE is nothing to drink and more things than ever to drink at.

THE Constitution chirps that all men are born freak and equal. Which puts the burden of proof on the individual. Under the new amendment, every citizen has the right to do what he doesn't want to.

THE idea of personal liberty is as beautiful as an Autumn leaf. And just as dead. Every American citizen stood alone. Everything was ranged to assist him in standing alone. Even the lamp-posts.



THEY had personal liberty in those days. If a man wanted to swizzle himself into a hobnailed liver or capillary tremors, that was the prerogative of every untrammeled citizen who placed an X in the right square. The first wormhole appeared in the dike of personal liberty when some gent split the ticket because he went to school with a Democratic nominee. He forgot that an honest boy may change with years. If a man wanted to guzzle himself into a red nose, that was his right. If he wanted to powder up to a state of personal liberty where he would gyrate home, kick the stuffing out of an unstuffed cat, curve a 144-piece cracked dinner set at his wife and sing "Auld Lang Syne" to the guy in the next cell, that was a question of personal liberty. If he wanted to drink himself bowlegged and fall asleep with one protecting arm around the garbage can, that was his right.

IF he wanted to drink himself into such a state of flabby degeneration that he would even puff going up a moving [illegible] privilege. And a privilege that couldn't be taken [illegible] was so narrow minded that his head would slip through a fine comb. If he hocked his wife's wedding ring, the [illegible] melodeon for two knuckles of "Happy Hours" bottled in bond amendment, that was the inalienable perog of an American citizen. If he wanted to shoot the thirty dollars rent over the bar, there was nothing in the Constitution to stop him. Thirty smackers ain't much when you're in the [illegible]

IF a guy can't liquor himself out of his job, gin himself into an apartment in Mr. Potter's pasture and booze his family into the breadline, then all personal privileges have been scorched and the framers of the Constitution have been framed.

This Day in History—October 28, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the finding, in 1871, of David Livingstone, the great English missionary, by the expedition under the leadership of Henry M. Stanley. For months no word had come from either. The story of Stanley's efforts reads like a romance. He was knighted by the King of England

The Story of the Artichoke

THE artichoke, which originally came from Barbary, is not a botanical species, but a variety of the thistle, which grows spontaneously all along the African coast of the Mediterranean from Morocco to Palestine.

The Wicked Marquis

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Love and Revenge Centre About an Agreeable English Aristocrat of the Old School

What Has Happened

The Marquis of Mandeleya, an English nobleman of a type of days gone by, finds himself nearly bankrupt from law cases and has Richard Vont, the occupant of a cottage on his estate who refuses to vacate, has own property. The Marquis' solicitor informs him that the sum of eighteen thousand pounds is needed to settle the court [illegible] or it would be necessary to [illegible] the Hall. [illegible] young American millionaire, protege of the Duchess, is introduced to the Marquis. The Marquis relates to [illegible] how he chose the daughter of Vont away with him. Thain [illegible] dinner party after which the Marquis tells Thain he won't have to make a million dollars without trouble to himself and with no chance of loss. Thain [illegible] oil stock. Marcia, Vont's daughter tells her publisher James Borden [illegible] cannot marry him. The Marquis finds his solicitor that he has bought 40,000 pounds worth of oil shares. Thain leases an estate from the Marquis near Mandeleya

THERE was a moment [illegible] "I had not forgotten [illegible] fact," Mr Wadham answered her [illegible], "and it certainly was a reprehensible that Mr. Thain would introduce a risky investment to your lordship within a few weeks of his arrival in this country. At the same time, we must, [illegible] of course, to bring [illegible] the broker's report."

"Quite so," the Marquis acquiesced. "Kindly let the people concerned know that I am acting in this [illegible] upon special information. Good-day, Mr Wadham. My compliments to your father."

Talk Ended

So the interview terminated but the Marquis for the remainder of that day felt as though just the shadow of a cloud rest [illegible] happiness. The [illegible] address of Lucia [illegible] cupied a place upon [illegible] study table, [illegible] both occasions he resisted [illegible] him out of his mind as [illegible] he needed. He buried himself instead in a Review.

Letitia came [illegible] on the way back from her [illegible] party. The Marquis rarely made a note of his plans and [illegible] from the periodics.

"You feel [illegible] well, I trust, dear."

"Oh, she was [illegible]," Letitia replied. "She had a [illegible] of callers there, [illegible]."

Her father [illegible] sympathetic air.

"The extraordinary [illegible] people in [illegible] have developed a [illegible] friends out [illegible] making [illegible]," he declared. [illegible]

IF THIN AND NERVOUS, TRY PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Flesh, Healthy Fresh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

When one stops to consider that a lot of thin people who are suffering continually for [illegible] and who they may increase [illegible] proportions by the [illegible] hollows, the rounding [illegible] angles with the attractive [illegible] of health and attractiveness, it is no wonder that many [illegible] suggestions along this line appear from time to time in public print.

While excessive leanness might be attributed to various causes and subject to different individuals, it is a well-known fact that the lack of phosphorus in the human system is very largely responsible for [illegible] condition.

It is [illegible] that this deficiency in [illegible] bones may now be met by the use of organic phosphate known [illegible] as Nitro-phosphate, obtainable from [illegible] druggists in powdered form.

The assimilation of this phosphate into the nerve tissue soon produces a wonderful change in [illegible] body. Nerve tension disappears, vigor and strength replace sickness, a sense of energy and the whole body soon loses its ugly hollows and angles, becoming enveloped in a glow of perfect health and beauty [illegible] will and strength to be [illegible].

CAUTION.—While Nitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for [illegible] nervousness, general debility, etc., it is taking [illegible] to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods

Love's Lexicon

A FAITHFULLY read dictionary and best seller—only dictionary that you ever heard of that was a best seller, too called "Love's Lexicon," by Daniel Cupid, Esq., a dictionary of love's language wherein it says, among other things, that "DARLING" is the best word known, both ancient and modern, that a lover may express himself or herself with, to make himself or herself understood at any time or in any country under the sun! Country girl in soft, simple white, a pink rose and home-made lace, rosetted slippers and softly-done hair, and city girl, in sophisticated gown and jeweled hair and fingers, in the latest chic boots from Paris—stilled and gemmed—loop arms around each other and read in the one book that means the same big magic to each.

"I [illegible] recommend it well to [illegible] a restaurant with a past. In the days of the Marquis's youth [illegible] such things were studied carefully then now, it was the one first-class restaurant in London to which the gilded youth of the aristocracy and perhaps their sires might indulge in the indiscretion of entertaining a young lady from the Italian chorus without fear of meeting older relatives. The world of bolder fashion had changed its laws since [illegible] days, and Trewlyn had been left high and dry. [illegible] chicken, the artichokes, and strawberries served with liqueurs remained, whatever the season. And their conversation. Marcia leaned back in her chair for a moment, and again the corners of her lips twitched as she remembered. Faithfully, year after year, she could trace those conversations—the courtly, old-fashioned [illegible] of the events of the world [illegible] from the one [illegible] a standard the standard of [illegible] Whiggism upon which the constitution itself rested, conversation with passing references to any new event in art, and, until lately, the stage. Tonight Marcia found herself tracing the gradual birth of her stimulating rebellion. She remembered how, years ago, she had sat in that same seat and listened as one might listen to the words of a god.

Stocks Are Strong in Both Markets During the Morning

PRICE ADVANCE AT BOSTON OPENING

Upward Trend Maintained Locally by Most of the Leaders

An advance occurred as soon as the Boston market opened and prices worked higher still during the first hour. A rally followed a slight second hour reaction. A number of issues sank at their best level at the end of the morning. Edison and Punta Alegre, Edison and U. S. Smelting were features of early trading. Punta Alegre and Edison held gains but Smelting receded from its highest before noon. Punta Alegre sold at a new high record figure. Increased earning account for the strength of Edison, high priced silver and the sugar situation for gains by the other two stocks.

Gray and Davis and Parish and Bingham were the most active unlisted accessory issues, and the first named advanced more than two points to within a fraction of its highest record price. The other was strong but its gain was small. National Leather was another active issue which did not advance much.

Among strongest stocks during the morning were Swift and Co., Mexican Investment, American Sugar and Fairbanks. All were up a point or more. Isle Royale declined a point and others in the recessional list were Atlantic Gulf, Central Leather, West End, Boston Elevated and Wall-Dham Watch.

Coppers were neglected as a class during the morning.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Porphyry Copper Outputs

September production by porphyry mines, according to preliminary figures, was as follows: Utah Copper, 8,220,052 pounds; Chino, 3,518,704; Ray Consolidated, 3,850,000; Nevada Consolidated, 4,200,000.

MOTOR ISSUES LEAD LIST IN GAINS

Tires Are Also Prominent, Two Selling at Their Record Highest

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon a number being at their top for the forenoon. Motors led the list for gains. General Motors was the big feature. At its highest it sold more than 20 points from Monday's closing. Tire issues were also prominent, Kelly Springfield and Goodrich selling at highest record prices. Republic Steel was conspicuous in the general buying movement, with six points gain from its best. Bethlehem B. and U. S. Steel were also higher, but just before 12 o'clock. This was also true of Atlantic Gulf and Mercantile Marines. Baldwin was prominent in the unusual gains of metals. Tobaccos, sugars and oils were strong. Texas Co., with more than seven points advance, made the best showing among the latter. Rails and coppers were rather less active.

The market was not as active as yesterday, but trading was brisk for all that, more than 500,000 shares being sold before noon. Sterling at 1 per cent. to the foreign exchange market sterling rates were firmer.

STRONG AT THE OPENING.

The market opened strong, with motors still in the lead and with steels, equipments, rubbers and other issues showing gains. The market continued to advance, with General Motors the feature of early trading. It began with a four-point advance to a new highest record price, and within an hour had gained twenty. Studebaker sold at its year's highest. Kelly Springfield and Pierce-Arrow while White Motor and Pierce Arrow reported for the September quarter net profits from operations in charge of $476,952, as compared with $356,729 for the corresponding 1918 period. Remington Typewriter advanced more than six points to a highest record price. Other gains were extensive and continued and practically the whole list participated.

LIKE GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE.

Answer from Washington in regard to the government attitude toward strikes pleased traders and bankers, and investors as well. Buying orders from the outside came over wire right and quickly absorbed all offerings at the opening. This led to more buying orders from the professional element and the forenoon's advance of $476,952, as compared with $356,729 for the corresponding 1918 period. Remington Typewriter advanced more than six points to a highest record price. Other gains were extensive and continued and practically the whole list participated.

LIKE GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE.

Answer from Washington in regard to the government attitude toward strikes pleased traders and bankers, and investors as well. Buying orders from the outside came over wire right and quickly absorbed all offerings at the opening. This led to more buying orders from the professional element and the forenoon's advance of the latter sort have been extensive this week, the short interest still large. In financial districts it is said that stocks are more strongly held than at any time since the market is reversed as regards technical conditions.

Related to motors, it is claimed that the increased valuation is justified by earnings and by the outlook prospective. The labor situation is regarded with more cheerfulness, it being believed that there will soon be a peaceful readjustment soon or at least that will end sympathetic and general financial interests what they may or may not risk in the immediate future. An improvement in the money market is looked for also.

U. S. Steel Earnings

It is expected in Wall Street that earnings by the United States Steel Corporation for the third quarter will be satisfactory, as consolidated net gain over net of $34,331,901 for the second quarter is looked for. The strike did not begin until the end of September and too late to materially affect the showing for the third quarter.

Large Sale of Copper

A mining company having a Boston office sold 1,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper last week at 27 cents a pound.

Distinct Willys Concerns

President John N. Willys, head of both companies, says:

"Willys Corporation should not be confused with the Willys-Overland Company. They are separate and distinct organizations, operated under entirely different managements.

"Willys Corporation formerly was the Electric Vehicle Company. Its present name has been acquired the New Process Gear Corporation, which is now a subsidiary company.

"Aside from the fact that the Willys Corporation has control of the 500,000 shares, or a little more than twenty-seven per cent. of the common stock of the Willys-Overland Company, and that it has contracted with The Willys-Overland Company to manufacture the sub-under car which it is producing, the two companies are entirely separate and distinct.

"The preferred stock recently offered is in the Willys Corporation, and not The Willys-Overland Company."

Dividend Declarations

General Cigar Company declared quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. on preferred and 1¾ per cent. on common, payable on December 1 to stock of record November 24 and declared extra dividend of 1¾ per cent. of record December 24.

New Central Coal Company of West Virginia declared semi-annual dividend of 20 cents a share, payable December 1.

United States Playing Card Company declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent., payable January 1 on stock of record December 23.

STAR-TEX PETROLEUM COMPANY

The regular monthly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the stock of Star-Tex Petroleum Company will be paid on Nov. 15, 1919, to the stockholders of record as they appear on the books of the company, Oct. 15, 1919. The Transfer Books will not be closed. PHILIP L. TREASURER.

U. S. Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer

Endorsed Crooker

In His Great Non-Partisan Fight to Take

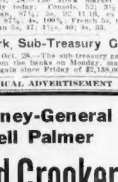
The Attorney-General's Office Out of Politics

When He Said in His Boston Speech:

"The profiteer, in my judgment, is the most despicable scamp that can live in any community in this emergency, and he ought to be routed out and exposed to public scorn, and, if necessary, confined in a public prison with an absolutely unrelentless rigor on the part of prosecuting officers, national and State, everywhere."

Mass. Officers Have Not Acted

Crooker Will Act



Crooker's Independent candidacy is the answer to Palmer's scathing denunciation of the inactivity of Massachusetts Public Officers.

Of Course the "L" Is Willing to Show Books Now

Robert E. Bigney, Representative from the Boston District, writes to the Boston American in part as follows:

Editor Boston American:

During the course of a protest meeting recently, I was surprised to secure, in answer to my request, permission from the Board of Trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company to examine the books of the Elevated with the assistance of a certified public accountant.

The public welfare demands that this offer be accepted. There has never been any proof given by the Elevated that either a 10-cent carfare or a $2 per thousand increase in the tax rate for Boston is necessary to pay the Elevated deficit.

I solicit the aid of the paper in order that we may both truly acquit ourselves of the duty we owe to the people.

ROBERT E. BIGNEY,
Representative, Tenth Suffolk District.

Mr. Bigney ought not to be surprised that the Boston Elevated's books should be opened to a representative of the public now. The Boston Elevated is absolutely controlled by the public and the public trustees did what public representatives are always willing to do—to agree to submit their books to any one who had an honest reason for seeing them. Mr. Bigney's surprise is that he forgets that there is a very great change in the character of the control of the Elevated. There would have been reason for surprise if the Elevated under its old management had agreed to submit its books. More than Mr. Bigney would have been surprised if the Elevated under its old private management had agreed to submit its books to any one except their own agents and servants.

The social and political evil of private control of our public utilities has been entirely wiped out by the transfer of that control to the public, represented by the trustees. Now the next step is to own the Elevated and thus free ourselves from the financial entanglements of the old private system and then sit tight for a few years and see the new dispensation work out its benefits.

Suggestion to the Junior Senator From Kansas

Senator Capper complains that by the time the four and one-half bushels of Kansas wheat, for which the farmer receives $8.37, the miller $12.70 and the baker $58.70, get to him on the table of a fashionable Washington hotel in thin slices of bread, the cost has grown to $587.

The experience is common. For another illustration, take the case of the average city man who right now is paying at the rate of 3½ cents apiece for half-rotten green apples which any self-respecting apple farmer would hesitate to feed to his pigs.

But the significant fact about these experiences is not that they happen, but that Senator Capper continues to pay at the rate of $587 for those thin slices of bread at the swell Washington hotel and the average Bostonian continues to pay a fabulous price for poor windfall apples when either or both, by a little co-operation with like victims, a little initiative, a little bother, might organize a food service with much of this intermediate wastefulness or profiteering cut out.

Most of us murmur at these excesses just as we murmur at scores of other abuses in American life which exist because of public tolerance.

And when we have temporarily relieved our exasperated feelings by a bit of animated conversation we go right on coddling the excesses and the abuses.

A distinguished and penetrating student of American social phenomena once said to the present writer that the most notable characteristic of the past generation was the growth among the people of a spirit of servility.

Early Americans in the main were self-reliant, independent, upstanding citizens, who took dust from nobody.

They organized their National Government as an independent concern, disentangled from foreign intrigues and zealous in its safeguarding of American interests first.

They were individual and strongly assertive in their private lives, fearing God, keeping their powder dry and never too timid to speak their minds.

They did not cringe before anybody for favors or meekly tolerate impositions from above.

They demanded freedom of speech, freedom to print what they thought, freedom of assemblage and association. They were not docile under gag laws. They were not unwilling to undergo hardships and sacrifice in behalf of their convictions. Parasitic growths had lean pickings in those days.

But with new times come new customs and, it would seem, a new and not always an improved spirit.

Today we have billions of treasure to scatter recklessly in the furtherance of foreign interests and foreign demands, a political leadership which looks upon our country as a recruiting ground for all sorts and conditions of adventures into visionary internationalism; we have press gags and speech silencers; we endure with hardly a protest infringements upon our elemental rights which our fathers would never have tolerated for a minute; and we are robbed to the right, to the left, behind and in front and, though there are murmurings, upon the whole we act as if we enjoyed it.

The gentleman from Kansas is a Senator of the United States with powers that are far reaching.

Instead of contenting himself with a mild monologue upon the extortionate price which he pays for his thin slices of bread, why does he not put the constructive processes of his able mind to work and start something?

[illegible] would never have been had its pioneers feared to dare.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE LURE OF MYSTICISM

By S. E. KISER

SISTER'S found a new enjoyment
Since we brought her home from France.
With a mind that craves employment
And a yearning for romance,
Is it strange that she has shaken
Off convention's bonds and flown
To a mystic who has taken
Fifty ladies for his own?

WHEN the war began she hurried,
Saying, "Here's a chance for thrills."
Father, who had long been worried,
Blessed her as he paid the bills.
While it lasted, fierce and frightful,
Daily costing more and more,
She was happy, and delightful,
In the uniform she wore.

BUT, her great adventure ended,
Sadness settled on her face;
From excitement she descended
To the stupid commonplace;
Dinners, theatres and dances,
All were deadly dull and tame;
Then the mystic in whose glances
There were cryptic meanings came.

SHE has gone to find new pleasure
In the mystic's bungalow,
Learning secrets she may treasure
While the seasons come and go;
Where the moments all are thrilling
And the orgies new and weird
Sister lingers more than willing,
Seeing ancient secrets cleared.

WHY must people be forever
Interfering with the cults,
Chasing mystics who endeavor
To achieve benign results?
Why must ladies, if they tire
Of life's common, decent ills,
Be disturbed when they desire
To acquire mystic thrills?

IT WAS during the war.
BETWEEN THE returned soldiers
AND THE German opera in New York.
AND I was neutral.
BECAUSE THE older I get.
THE LESS use I am.
IN A public fight.
AND MY wind is bad.
AND I can't run.
AND I was uptown.
SOMEWHERE IN the Sixties.
AND I got on a street car.
AND I had forgotten.
THAT THERE might be trouble.
AND I was sitting there.
AND THERE were four women.
AND THREE men.
AND A tenor singer.
WHO IS a friend of mine.
AND WE were talking.
AND ALL at once.
THERE WAS a crash.
OF A breaking window.
IN THE middle of the car.
AND WE heard shots.
AND ALL of the men.
SLIPPED FROM their seats.
AND ONTO the floor.
AND DUCKED their heads.
SO THEY couldn't be seen.
BY THE attacking party.
AND ALL of the women.
JUMPED UP from their seats.
AND LOOKED out of the windows.
TRYING TO discover.
WHAT THE trouble was about.
WHICH GOES to prove.
THAT IN time of danger.
WOMEN GET panicky.
AND HAVE no sense.
AND, ANYWAY.
I WAS down on the floor,
CRAWLING AROUND a woman.
AND I kept going.
TO THE front of the car.
AND I opened the door.
AND LOOKED up at the motorman.
AND HE didn't know.
THAT ANYTHING had happened.
AND WHEN I spoke to him.
HE LOOKED around.
AND SEEMED surprised.
TO SEE a passenger.
ON HIS hands and knees.
AND HE looked inside.
AND THE other men.
WERE CRAWLING around.
AND HE said to me.
"WHAT'S THE idea.
"IS IT a game or something?"
AND JUST at that moment.
ONE OF the women.
STEPPED RIGHT over me.
AND SAID to the motorman.
"WON'T YOU please stop the car.
"WE WANT to get out.
"AND SEE what's the trouble."
AND IT wasn't till then.
THAT THE motorman discovered.
WE'D BEEN fired upon.
AND HE said to the woman.
"LADY, TAKE it from me.
"THIS AIN'T no place.
"FOR TO stop a car."

THANK YOU.

THE WORLD'S LONESOMES AND THEIR TROUBLES

By Winifred Black

"DEAR WINIFRED BLACK:

Please read this letter and tell me what can I do. I promise not to be tragic, but please try to give me a little comfort.

"I am lonesome. There are many others like me, but everyone has different troubles, be it family or any others. I try to have an optimistic view of things, but things arise that give way to obstacles. It gives me pleasure to try to overcome it, but it is a continuous impediment.

"Does a child—I will say a woman—realize when brought up in a loving home, with a congenial atmosphere, what it is to be ridiculed, sneered at and made a laughing stock? To be candid, I have been bred so that it has made me a stone. I must be a statue when I'm home, only I can breathe.

"Dear Winifred Black, what is life without love and companionship? It's a living death. The dead are gone, but the living breathe, feel and see. I'm not morbid. I am only stating facts.

"I am eighteen, and I almost wish I wasn't existing. Things look dark, and every cloud has a silver lining, but mine will never have one. I never had a happy moment in my life, and I have absolutely no fond recollections to look back on—the past is dark and the future is dark. I almost laugh, when I think of it, and then I feel like a piece of stone.

Wants to Live and Laugh

"I'm no undiscovered pearl, nor an unrecognized genius, nor do I expect more than the common lot; but I haven't even that.

"Why can't I live and laugh like others? I'm not a prisoner, and I am. I have no faith in anyone, because I was always mistaken. If anyone has a nice word for me, I laugh and sneer. It's so odd. Yet, Winifred Black, I want it. I lie awake at nights thinking of it—oh, to be like other girls—but when the day sets in I think it must be. I believe I am going mad.

"If I could only be among people—people. I don't wish to be theatrical. Occurrences like mine should be enacted on the stage and not in real life. Goethe said: 'Life is the school of character.' Am I bad? People think me horrid. They say unpleasant things to me, but I laugh; but when I'm alone I can just rage.

"I am not an innocent baby waking to light. I admit I am cold. I wasn't so before 'cause I could just laugh and dance the whole day long. My family has spoken so that I imagine I'm a beast or the tempter in person. I'm almost afraid to talk to people or to come among them. If girls run away they aren't to blame. If they only had a home, not a place to sleep, what many call a home, they would be different.

"Will you write an article? I'd appreciate it ever so much.

"LONESOME."

Mother Doesn't Realize It

Don't laugh—there's nothing funny about it.

I wonder how many of us realize just what a black tragedy life seems to the apparently light-hearted youngsters who are living right under the same roof with us all the time? It does make us laugh to think of it—how tragic they are about the little nothings of life; how self-conscious, how wrapped up in their own wee little personal affairs.

For what is a joke to us is desperate misery to them and their poor young hearts haven't learned yet how to ache and how to sing at the same time.

Poor little Lonesome, I'm sorry for you, but most of all I'm sorry for your mother. She doesn't realize how very close she could hold you to her heart if she only understood.

Have you ever sat down and talked it all over with her very quietly, little Lonesome? I'd do it if I were you. She loves you better than her life, but she's just forgotten, that's all.

What Does Mrs. Russell's Husband Really Think?

Even married men find women a perpetual puzzle and particularly their wives. Mrs. Olive Russell, who has plenty of money and a splendid social position, has a unique way of expressing herself. She says she "just has to." The reason for it is simple enough after you know. You will be interested to read what she has to say about it in the magazine section of next Sunday's

The Day of Arbitration
500,000 and 99,500,000
Which Will Rule?

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.

One question in the United States is important, the strike question.

Ever since calling strikes ceased to be a crime, industrial problems have been settled on a strike basis.

The men have quit, saying: "Pay us what we want, or we won't come back." Some times they came back without getting more, when employers were strong and there was plenty of labor. Hunger drove them back.

Some times they stayed out until they got what they wanted, when labor was scarce and employers did not want their plants idle. Love of profit drove them.

Old strikes were comparatively small affairs. Occasionally they were disagreeable and bloody, but the biggest of them affected only one group, or at most one city.

Like other business enterprises, the strike has grown in bigness, importance and seriousness.

A successful railroad strike would tie up industries, and starve off half the people in the cities.

A successful coal strike would tie up the railroads to begin with, and everything else. While four or five hundred thousand men were fighting it out with their employers, millions of men would be idle by force. Employers couldn't hire them even if they wanted to.

There comes from Washington the President's statement that it is a crime to plan a strike to benefit half a million and injure one hundred millions.

The workmen say that if a small strike is legal, a big strike is legal. If the government doesn't want the consequences, it should compel mine owners to give in.

Mine owners say that if they concede a work day of six hours, a working week of five days now, the next thing would be a four-hour day, a three-day week, and gradually labor would reach the vanishing point.

It is a question that the public will have to solve for itself. Ninety-nine million, five hundred thousand citizens are more important than five hundred thousand coal miners. The ninety-nine million, five hundred thousand must be protected first, even though temporary injustice or apparent deprivation of rights should be inflicted upon the five hundred thousand.

When war threatens the entire nation from abroad, men are chosen without their consent and sent to be killed to protect the millions. When industrial war threatens one hundred million people, the hundred millions must be protected, no matter who suffers, no matter what fine speeches may be made about the right of a man to work or not to work.

It is not for the five hundred thousand coal miners, or for the handful of men that make fortunes by owning the mines to decide what shall be done or how the thing shall be settled.

The people of the United States own the mines. All private ownership is simply a condition existing by consent of the government; one that can be ended at any moment under the right of eminent domain.

The five hundred thousand coal miners are a minority in the nation. Whatever they think or want must give way to the needs of the majority. That is the law in a republic.

And there is no doubt that in one way or another the ninety-nine million, five hundred thousand people of the United States will make up their minds to decide without first having coal, railroads, water, or milk or malt suddenly cut off, what should be done to treat employers and workers justly.

John L. Lewis, acting president of the mine workers, says: "With Abraham Lincoln, I thank God that we have a country where men may strike."

It was a step forward when the law was changed so that men might quit their work without being put in prison for committing a crime.

The right to strike meant progress, and Lincoln might well thank God for it.

But intelligence and a sense of justice leading to arbitration will be another step forward, far beyond the strike.

There is nothing so important to five hundred thousand as justly inflicting suffering upon a hundred millions. If that isn't so, then government by the majority is a joke.

Arbitration to be just must take into consideration the hard work that the men do, and realize that first the public, second the workers, and third the owners are to be considered.

The unpleasant truth is that following the world war almost every nation, this one included, now faces industrial war. There is an angry attitude on both sides of the fence, among employers and employed. Where there ought to be co-operation, fair dealing, there is hostility. Solving the problem is going to be one of the most difficult tasks in the country's history.
